CAPTAIN DOLLAR WANTS POSITIVE U.S. TRADE POLICY

ATTENTION TO ORIENT

While Maintaining Aggressive Attitude, U. S. Will Respect All Nations

Tokio, May 3.—Further positive measures for world trade by the government of the United States were predicted by Captain Robert Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Company, who arrived in Kobe with Mrs. Dollar recently. According to Captain Dollar the present administration in the United States realises that the Wilson administration, engrossed in domestic affairs as it was, neglected foreign trade. President Harding, Captain Dollar believes, and the Harding cabinet, are dedicated to an extension of trade policy, and the veteran steamship man sees in this attitude, an optimistic outlook for American shipping.

Captain Dollar reached Yokohama from Seattle on the Wenatchee of the Admiral Line which brought Major General Leonard Wood and Mr. W. Cameron Forbes, members of the special mission sent by President Harding to the Philippine Islands. Captain Dollar came to Kobe by train from Yokohama last Friday to see Mr. T. W. Malmgren, agent of the Kobe office of the Robert Dollar Lines. Perhaps no American business man is better known in the Far East than Captain Dollar. He is popularly known as the "lumber king" because of his extensive interests in the lumber business.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF NEEDED

"It is possible," Captain Dollar said, "that the Harding Government may put a protective tariff into effect. This is necessary for two reasons. First of all, America must be prepared for the possible dumping of Germany and Belgium. There are already indications that these two nations will make supreme efforts in order to regain their lost foreign trade. In this endeavor it is possible that they will resort to a dumping policy. America is in need of more money to carry out its manifold works and in order to raise more funds a higher tariff is necessary. The retiring government has not had enough money to do all its work. In adopting a higher tariff America has no motives other than those already pointed out. America will be cautious enough not to hurt her trade with any nation by her new protective policy. China, Japan and any other Asiatic commercial nations and others in the world at large need not worry over this point.

"America is fully aware of the fact that her trade is indispensable in maintaining closer relationship among the nations. There is a true friendship between the nations only when their business men come to know each other in a practical and intelligent way, and if the trade relation between America and Japan is more and more developed such absurdity as talk of an America-Japan war, will disappear. Moreover, the majority of the Americans keenly desire intimacy with the Japanese people. Jingoism, yellow journalism and demagogues exist anywhere. America has some of them and I believe they also exist in Japan. They deserve no attention whatever."

ONCE A CHORE BOY

Captain Dollar was born in a Scottish lumberyard. With his father he came to Canada at an early age. Before receiving any schooling he was hired out as chore boy in a lumber camp. Young Dollar was often seen after regular working hours practising writing and figuring on birch bark, the only "paper" available. The first monthly wage he got was $6 and he still vividly remembers that happiest moment he says he has ever felt in his life. He early saw the possibilities of exporting lumber to Britain and opened up a large and profitable trade, this of course taking place in his later life. He failed once, this being in the great panic of 1873. Seeking new fields Captain Dollar then made his way to China where he now has firmly established business interests.

SEATTLE TRADE MISSION TO BE GUESTS AT DANCE

American Chamber Of Commerce To Entertain At Columbia Country Club

WENATCHEE DUE TODAY

Booster Delegation From Northwest To Be Here But One Day

The special commercial commission from the Seattle-Pacific Northwest which arrives in Shanghai this morning on the Admiral Line steamer Wenatchee, will be entertained at a tea-dance this afternoon from 5 to 7:30 at the Columbia Country Club by the American Chamber of Commerce.

A committee from the American Chamber, representing both that body and the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, will meet the nineteen members of the Northwestern Mission at the Lower Wharf this morning, extend Shanghai's welcome, and learn just what program of welcome would be acceptable to the visitors before any further plans are announced.

The Chinese Chamber has been carefully watching the voyage of the Wenatchee in the hope of entertaining the American Commercial delegates at a dinner. It is possible that the Chinese body may arrange some function of welcome if time permits, before the departure of the boat tomorrow noon.

The Northwestern commercial mission is making the round trip on the Wenatchee's first voyage partly in celebration of Seattle's entering again into fast-service trade and passenger communication with the Orient, and partly with the idea of promoting friendly relations between Far Eastern Ports and the city of Seattle.

Of the 74 cabin passengers on the Wenatchee's maiden voyage, 45 are making the round trip to Manila and back to Seattle. Among the passengers the most prominent, after the disembarkation in Yokohama of General Leonard Wood and Mr. W. Cameron Forbes' mission to the Philippines, are the members of the commercial commission from the Pacific Northwest.

Included in the Seattle commission party is one pair of honeymooners, Mr. and Mrs. Burr D. Cline. Mr. Cline is a young business man of Seattle. His fiancee, niece of Mr. and Mrs. David Rodgers was booked in the commission party. When the time came for good-bye saying Miss Stedman and Mr. Cline decided the marry forthwith and spend their honeymoon on the Oriental trip. A passport was obtained through Mr. Rodgers' influence at the eleventh hour and Mr. Cline became one of the party. Mr. Rodgers is one of the foremost shipbuilders of the American Northwest.

CONTINUATION COMMITTEE ENDS ITS CONVENTION

Adopts Budget, Elects Officers And Considers Plans For Expansion

REV. ROOTS CHAIRMAN

Survey Of China From Church Standpoint Discussed

The China Continuation Committee which has been in session here since Friday held its concluding meeting yesterday. During the day the budget was adopted. This included $13,800 for the National Christian Conference and involved $98,774 for the work of all the interests connected with the committee.

In connection with the securing of land for the mission's building there has been spent Tls. 198,174.06. The original sum of G.$150,000 is still in hand for erection for which authority has now been received. The need for this building, it was said, has grown. It was also announced that a bureau of mission architects has been established in Shanghai during the last few weeks.

The invitation made last year to Miss Woods of the London Missionary Society to join the staff of the China Continuation Committee was reaffirmed and endorsed in a special resolution by the women members of the conference. Other efforts were made to secure additional help. In reporting on the work of the China Christian Educational Association Dr. Gamewell announced that there was hope of Mr. Wallace of West China joining the staff of the Association.

Right Rev. L. R. Roots was elected chairman; David Z. T. Yui, vice-chairman; Rev. C. G. Sparham, honorary secretary, and Dr. W. P. Chen, treasurer. Other committees were appointed at the same time. Rev. G. C. Clayton was appointed chairman of the Christian Literature Council; David Z. T. Yui, chairman of the China for Christ Movement; Bishop Graves, chairman of the Committee on the National Conference; Dr. Fong F. Sec., chairman of the Phonetic Committee; Bishop Molony, chairman of the Committee on Moslems; Rev. Frank Rawlinson, chairman of the Social and Moral Welfare Committee and Rev. G. A. Clayton, chairman of the Committee on Work for the Blind.

Three important topics occupied the attention of the China Continuation Committee in its Monday meeting. These were the National Christian Conference, the relation of the church to international questions, and the Survey of China from the view-point of Christian work.

Bishop Graves reported for the committee on arrangements for the National Christian Conference, which it is expected will meet in Shanghai in the spring of 1922. About a thousand delegates are expected to attend this Conference, composed equally of Chinese and foreign Christians. It is proposed that the conference last about ten days.

Telegrams were received yesterday from Peking stating that in a large section of Chihli and part of Shantung there had been a wheat crop failure that will necessitate relief work during the summer. The staff of one hundred foreigners engaged in relief work there is in imperative need of rest. It is estimated that four million dollars will be needed for relief. Additional relief workers are also called for.

'FREE TRADE OR TARIFF' FIGHT LOOMS IN ENGLAND

Government To Introduce Tariff Measure For Protection

HITS DYE IMPORTS

Bill Calls For 33 1-3 p c. Ad Valorem Duty For 5 Years

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 9.—The fiscal controversy, foreshadowing a revival of the Free Trade versus Tariff Reform Dispute of Mr. Chamberlain's later years, was reopened in the House of Commons this afternoon, when the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, introduced resolutions connected with the Safeguarding of Industries Bill. This provides for an ad valorem duty of 33⅓ percent for five years on certain articles, particularly chemical and scientific products, regardless of the country whence they are imported and for the protection of British manufactures against the competition of foreign goods which, owing to the depreciation of currencies, can be sold in Great Britain at prices below those at which they can be profitably manufactured in this country.

Mr. Baldwin declared it was the Government's intention to ignore the criticism which had been advanced against the measure, and to introduce it. He pointed out that the list of articles affected had been kept down to the narrowest limits and most of them were essential for national defence or for the scientific foundation of British industries, such as the chemical and dye trades.

Dealing with the prevention of dumping, Mr. Baldwin declared that a committee would be established, empowered to impose duties for a period of three years when it was satisfied that British industries were likely to be affected by dumping. Articles of food and drink were specifically excluded from the scope of the measure.

Sir William Barton, of Oldham, formerly a member of the Coalition, but now an Asquithian Liberal—moved an amendment, resolutions to one year, instead of five years. He accused the Government of always considering the producer, rather than the consumer, who had to pay every time the Government paid attention to home trade before foreign trade.

Sir Alfred Mond, Minister of Health, who was one of the protagonists of free trade in the last fiscal debate, now supported the resolutions. He maintained that they did not contain anything objectionable to free traders. People were mistaken in thinking that "free trade" meant cheap goods. He contended that it was foolish to say that we did not know what would be wanted in another war and that we ought therefore to do nothing.

He declared that the anti-dumping regulations would give British manufacturers a square deal, whereas the present situation was a business bedlam.

COAL MINERS IN SERIOUS RIOTING AT ALDERSHOT

Shop Windows Smashed And Stores Looted By Strikers

POLICEMEN HURT

Lord Weir Submits Constructive Scheme For Settlement

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 9.—A serious riot has occurred at Aldershot, involving men in uniform accompanied by a large party carrying a red flag. Shop windows were smashed and the shops looted, and several policemen injured. The outbreak was apparently due to discontent among the reservists called up in connection with the coal dispute.

Later.

All is now quiet at Aldershot. The riot was apparently such as occasionally occurs on Saturday nights where large bodies of troops are gathered, and began with the smashing of the windows of omnibuses. The soldiers concerned wore no badges but were excited by an erroneous report that a number of their comrades were detained in the guard room. The actual window-smashers were a comparatively small party, but hundreds of soldiers followed the rioters. Many treated the matter as a joke, though some of them remonstrated with the rioters.

London, May 9.—At the same time that conversations were taking place yesterday between labor representatives and the Premier, occasioning a natural feeling of optimism in responsible circles as regards the coal situation, a fresh and grave menace occurred to complicate the crisis. The railwaymen and transport workers now refuse to touch coal, even for vital services. The trouble began in the Clyde district, and is declared to be due to Communist activities.

A disquieting factor in connection with this new development is that serious disorders on the part of troops, similar to the one already reported at Aldershot, occurred at Colchester and Doncaster. These disorders are attributed to widespread attempts by the Communist faction to stir up trouble.

LORD WEIR'S PLAN

London, May 9.—Lord Weir has submitted to the Government a constructive scheme to settle the coal dispute which has obtained the widest prominence. His lordship declares that all proposals based entirely on wage changes are foredoomed to failure, owing to the falling coal prices and would cause the closing down of many mines. The problem, therefore, is to bring the price of coal to an international competitive level with the least interference in wages, as cheaper coal is essential for the revival of industry.

The cost per ton of coal in March was 39 shillings, of which the wage cost was 27s. 9d. Industry requires coal at 20 shillings a ton. Lord Weir therefore suggests a return to the eight-hour shift, thus reducing the wage cost to 24 shillings; a restoration of the 1913 rate of output, thus reducing the figure to 20s. 2d.; the elimination of uneconomic pits, reducing it to 19s. 6d., and a reduction of wages by two shillings, making the wage cost per ton 16s. 10d.

He looks to owners to reduce the cost of stores, timber and management from 10s. 8d. to 7s. 2d., thus giving a total cost per ton of 24s. 8d., including royalties.

Lord Weir urges that the scheme should be of two years' duration. It also includes the restoration of the piece-work incentive, and does not involve a subsidy, but it is suggested that the £10,000,000 subsidy should be retained to help the unemployment benefits.

London, May 9.—Hopes for the settlement of the coal strike have been encouraged by the announcement that the Premier sent a message to the King at the last moment, stating he was unavoidably prevented from meeting the Japanese Crown Prince at Victoria station. The Premier was meanwhile with the Cabinet discussing the coal question.

Subsequently, replying to a question in the House of Commons, Mr. Lloyd George said that the Government was doing its best to effect a settlement, and that it was inadvisable to say more.

Girls Float Twenty-Four Hours To Test Safety Suits

IN order to test the durability of a safety suit for ocean travelers, two New York girls, the Misses Ruth Maples and Doris Vanderweken, donned the suits and floated in the waters of New York Bay for twenty-four hours. They took their meals standing up in the water and even slept part of the time. Neither was the worse for the unusual experiment after the twenty-four hours were up. The photo shows the girls, with Mr. A. E. Jackson, floating around off the Battery wall.

Writing Letters Home Is Bothersome Business

BY ELSIE McCORMICK

We don't know just what Marco Polo wrote home during his premier visit to China but somehow we have an idea that it wasn't very different from things that every griffin indites when he sets forth his first impressions. Mrs. Polo probably showed the letter with pride to her cousin; Aqua displayed it to the neighbors, and then sent it across the sea to the other member of the family who runs the Polo Grounds in New York, privately resolving, however, to find out from Marco as soon as he got home just what he meant by saying that he had spent several hours admiring the lines of a graceful sampan.

Every person with the steamship label still fresh on his baggage delights in writing letters home heavily larded with the phraseology of the East. He delights, too, in placing "China" at the head of his epistle with a wide flourish and he usually scorns the convenience of an American or British post-office, preferring to plaster on a stamp which bears the picture of a junk and a few hand-picked characters.

His first few letters home are generally heavy enough to go as freight, being full of intimate descriptions of fish-markets, ricsha coolies, smells, wedding-processions and grave mounds. After a time, however, his letters register a loss of avoirdupois that would delight a lady grand-opera star, and finally reach a state of emaciation capable of doing credit to an Armenian orphan. What he does send is usually highly unintelligible to the folks at home, concentrating on references to chits, the taipan, the Carlton, and the Spring meet, the latter phrase being interpreted by the family as a remark about lamb, and leading to the conclusion that the writer's spelling had suffered heavily during his sojourn in China.

Personally we recall with several tremors a description we wrote before we ever saw this land. It concerned a book which had been successfully translated into Chinese and it ran, "Many a Mandarin can be seen reading it as he whirls through the streets of Shanghai in his sedan-chair." Outside of the fact that there are no more Mandarins, that sedan-chairs are practically never seen in Shanghai and that if there were, they wouldn't whirl, the statement is fairly accurate. We also remember writing home from Japan that we had heard a pretty Japanese girl playing on her obi, but as the family didn't know any better either, it didn't make much difference. The day after we landed in Yokohama, an effusive lady told us that when we visited Nara we mustn't fail to see some of the cute tori and after noting the speckled deer on the street, we wrote home that we had seen them.

Then there are the people who are fond of writing their letters from spectacular places. They like to climb to the top of a pagoda or something, and then begin, "Far below me I can see the Whangpoo River, as it glides in sinuous curves through Chinese farms, villages, and cities." On the train going to Kalgan we concocted epistles to a dozen people beginning, "I am writing this within sight of the Great Wall of China." We didn't add that a Chinese cat, tethered by an uncertain string to the next seat, was at that moment trying to crawl up our back, nor that the entire population of the car was engaged in cooking decadent morsels on a central stove.

There are a great variety of letter-writers in Shanghai. There is the young man who tries to keep up a frolicsome correspondence with the Manila school teacher whom he met coming out and whose image has since been effaced by half-a-dozen local buds. He goes on writing, however, because he feels he ought to be decent to the poor girl, who is probably pretty far gone on him; and she continues to dash off answers between dates because she feels that the poor chap must be pretty lonely 'way over there in Shanghai and she oughtn't to let the good time she is having interfere with being nice to others less fortunate. There is also the youth who promised a weekly letter to somebody in Sun Dance, Wyoming, or Hoboken, New Jersey, and who is having a desperate struggle trying to hold up his end in a sprightly discussion of the latest films and the doings of the local younger set.

There is a great advantage in the uncertainty of trans-Pacific mails. The uncomplete letter-writer can always claim that he wrote, but that his letter failed to arrive. Such a correspondent usually begins, "As I told you in my letter of last week"—and the recipient proceeds to make a few remarks about overseas deliveries.

Getting letters is sometimes almost as big a trial as sending them. Optimists writing to friends in the Far East exclusive of this city confidently believe that a two-cent stamp is sufficient to carry anything anywhere. Who has not paid good money for postage on something forwarded from home, only to find that it is an announcement that Hans Schuhlmeister, the Swiss delicatessen man, has moved around the corner, where he will continue to dispense satisfaction and sausages at reasonable prices? Or that the Step-Over Shoe Company has just issued a special design for flat feet?

The griffin who staggers under a load of correspondence can take consolation in the thought that within a year practically everybody at home will have forgotten him, and that the descriptions he will feel impelled to write about the scenery could be lodged on the hinterland of a postal card.

U.S. URGES GERMANY TO ACCEPT DEMANDS

Washington Papers Get Information "On High Authority"

POLES' RAMPAGE

Overrun Whole Of Plebiscite Area, London Hears

London, May 9.—Certain Washington newspapers have learned on high authority that the United States Government desires Germany to accept the Allies' demands. It is assumed that the United States Commissioner in Berlin has informed the German Government accordingly.

Paris, May 9.—Mr. Hugh Wallace, the United States Ambassador here, has resumed his seat on the Ambassadors' Council.

Berlin, May 9.—The French Government, in reply to a German note, offering to suppress the Silesian revolt, definitely avers that this was due to false reports regarding the Allies' award, alleging that nearly all the mining and industrial area had been assigned to Germany.

The reply further states that the Allies have done everything possible to restore order in the district, and that an improvement is reported from the most important coal centers. The gaps in the police force, through the desertion of Poles, have been filled up. It is emphasised that the Inter-Allied Commission cannot accept outside help.

London, May 9.—In the House of Commons today at question-time, Mr. Cecil Harmsworth, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, stated that the Polish insurgents had overrun the whole of the plebiscite area to the Oder. The Allies were considering proposals for a settlement. Steps were taken to strengthen the police by local recruiting. The Polish Government had been requested to close the frontier and prohibit the assistance or encouragement of insurgents.

Replying to supplementary questions, the Premier agreed it was unfortunate that the incident should have arisen when the German Government was making up its mind on the disarmament question. He stated that Great Britain was doing her utmost to bring pressure to bear on the Polish Government.

Paris, May 7 (delayed).—The Reparations Commission has handed the German Ambassador an itemised note showing the amounts due and delays in payment.

Paris, May 7 (delayed).—The American Government's decision to appoint representatives to the Supreme Council, the Ambassadors' Council and the Reparations Commission is causing considerable satisfaction, as it greatly improves the outlook for a prompt settlement of present European problems.

LOCAL PROBLEMS CONSIDERED BY THE CHINA ASS'N

Politics, Education, Finance And Internal Affairs Discussed

The numerous problems confronting China and Shanghai were discussed in the speech of the chairman of the China Association at its annual general meeting held at the Shanghai Club yesterday.

The politics of China, fighting in Honan, prevalence of brigandage in North Kiangsu, the pirate raidings in the Yangtsze gorges, the "self appointment" of Dr. Sun Yat-sen as president of South China, the protection of trademarks, and the problem of the Chinese students in England, all were considered. The references to conditions as affecting Shanghai applied chiefly to the great influx of light weight copper coins, and discussion of a cure for the evil.

Mr. E. C. Pearce presided. There were present also Messrs. E. F. Mackay, C. G. S. Mackie, D. McNeill, F. W. Potter, O. M. Green, A. Brooke-Smith and C. J. Scott, of the Committee; Secre-

SETTLEMENT IN U.S. SHIP STRIKE THOUGHT LIKELY

Admiral Benson Meets Representatives Of Workmen—Traffic Normal

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, 8.—The prospect for the settlement of the marine workers' strike appears to have considerably brightened as the result of a conference which Admiral Benson (Chairman of the Shipping Board) and representatives of the engineers had with Mr. Davis, Secretary of Labor. This was adjourned at a late hour, and will be resumed tomorrow. All the parties are silent as to the proceedings, but it was noticeable that they came away smiling.

The Shipping Board is determined to maintain the 15 percent. reduction in wages, but the owners are reported to have refused to yield on the wage, trusts and other questions. Admiral Benson said he was investigating reports that some operators had signed on men at the old scale upon proof of the prompt action of the Government in withrawing ships from their control. He said the moment of vessels was practically normal. Approximately 50 Shipping Board vessels had sailed in the past week, and more vessels had been located for operation than at any time in the past three months.

San Francisco, May 8.—The Amazon Maru and an Alaskan fishing boat were the only departures today.

The White Flyer line, operating the steamer Huboldt coastwise, has signed an agreement to continue the old rate of wages for a year.

Baltimore, May 8.—Three submarine chasers attached to the Naval Academy at Annapolis are in readiness to sail for Baltimore to meet any eventuality that may arise from the marine strike here. Machine-guns have been mounted on their decks. The Director of Operations of the Shipping Board here has asked the Government for protection, declaring that the local police protection is inadequate.

Washington, May 9.—The efforts of the Secretary of Labor, Mr. Davis, to effect a settlement of the shipping dispute have failed, in consequence of the Shipping Board's insistence on a fifteen percent reduction in wages. No further conferences have been held.

The Waring Company

The Waring Company were seen in that delightful little comedy, written by Lechmere Worrall, and entitled "Ann," last night at the Lyceum Theater, and the well filled house thoroughly enjoyed it.

The merry play opens up with a smile and there is just a ripple of laughter from that point to the last fall of the curtain.

With a cast of only six players the piece provided everyone with plenty to do, but the majority of the work fell to the lot of Miss Jeannette Sherwin and Mr. H. B. Waring. As the American reporter "Ann Anning" Miss Sherwin was excellent. She developed quite a passable Yankee drawl, and most of her "a's" were as short as the best American could wish. Mr. Waring as "Edward Hargreaves" pleased the house immensely with his portrayal. He managed to get the nervous author to convince, rather than to irritate and thus overcame one of the pitfalls of the part.

Miss Alys Rees won the sympathy of everyone in the house by her charming playing of "Mrs. Hargreaves," the mother of "Edward." Her sunny smile, and her evident delight in the young peoples' fun was a treat to watch. "The Dean Of Milchester" was played by Mr. Frank Vosper. The character was well handled and caused plenty of merriment owing to its happy caricature. I liked the "Billy" of Mr. James Jolly immensely. This player has an easy style and always gets well among the audience with his nice voice and pleasant smile. Miss Hallatt as usual gave a capital little study of "Evangeline."

Tonight the versatile company will be seen in "Romeo and Juliet."

Great care has been taken to give Shakespeare's wonderful play a worthy presentation. Miss Ellen Terry had a good deal to do with the preparing of the production, and she had any amount of encouragement to give to her young friend H. B. Waring.

Smiles from the Mixed Court

As an embezzler Oo Ah-lan has either too interfering a conscience or too much of a bent for practical joking ever to be much of a success.

Oo was erstwhile employed by Dzung Tsah-tsing, who deals in silks at 1253 Peking Road. As the result of a transaction of a week ago Oo was dispatched with six rolls of high grade goods which were to be delivered to a certain other shop. He started out early in the morning and it was nearly dusk when the customer called on Dzung and caustically remarked that he had been figuring on putting that silk on sale during the current season, as he thought the pattern might be out of vogue in 1922.

Dzung had no hallucinations regarding Oo's velocity as an errand artist, but he was constrained to admit that this was a bit too gradual. So he assigned the rest of the staff to the job of running down the delinquent. The search lasted most of the night and throughout the next day but no trace of Oo was struck. The next evening however Dzung received a note through the post. It was a brief farewell and enclosed several pawn tickets.

With Oo's guarantor in tow Dzung sought the pawnshop and there the silk was reclaimed, after the guarantor had shed $160.

Something went wrong with Oo's schedule though and it was another day before he got started for the boundary and his suburban home. He was making for the hinterland in a ricsha, surrounded by luggage, when a preternaturally skeptical constable stopped him and bluntly inquired whether the goods belonged to him. On search Oo was found to be in possession of many bank notes and the policeman, sneering at his recital of a legacy and the necessity of proceeding without delay to the bedside of a dying mother in the country, hauled him to the station, where a freshly received "wanted" description was tried on him and fitted like a glove.

Oo entered no denial when confronted with the charge. He had grown tired of the city, he said, and wanted to go home and this looked like the only way to escape the prodigal route. Sidetracked for thirty days.

WOO ENCORES

Woo Sz-kung revisited the Mixed Court yesterday. Woo has a weak memory, or one of those non-stop systems of curiosity, or something. He made his first appearance some years ago, since which time he has reappeared and been kicked out of the Settlement no less than eleven times, yesterday scoring his 12th rebound. Woo was going along Fukien Road when he attracted official attention by abstracting a cotton jacket from a ricsha which had been temporarily abandoned by Loo Ah-doo. The constable who saw and captured him thought there was something familiar about his prisoner and when the fingerprint experts got to investigating and brought out a sheaf of card index references Woo made no claim of mistaken identity.

"But," he told the Court, "I was only passing through the Settlement. I didn't intend to stay."

The Court jolted his intentions two years' worth and then they'll try exiling him again.

Miss El-Tour Here

Miss Anna El-Tour, a very distinguished singer who achieved great fame throughout Russia and Europe, arrived here recently from Harbin.

Miss El-Tour is a very talented person and started her study of music and singing at an early age with the best of professors. Her studies were concluded in St. Petersburg, and she graduated in both piano and singing. Finishing with the Conservatoire, she made her first debut in London under the conductorship of Professor Nikisch, after which she was invited to tour England with the well known violinist Kubelik. For a year before the war she sang in opera at St. Gallen in Switzerland and was offered a post at the Imperial Theater at Vienna when war had just broken out. She was therefore forced to make her stay in Moscow where she has been during the whole period of the war.

Miss El-Tour has a very charming personality and at the time of leaving Moscow held a position as professor of the Philharmony. Her repertoire consists of some 2,000 songs from the works of old masters of the 18th century to present day modern songs of Debussy and others. She sings in English, French, Russian, Italian and German, and is also an accomplished linguist in these languages. Her voice is mezzo-soprano. She interprets her songs in a masterly manner, and it is a delight to hear her. It is very seldom one has the opportunity of hearing such a singer as Miss El-Tour, who has already given private recitals at which she sang English, French, Russian and Italian songs of the great masters. She has been induced to sing next Sunday at the last concert of the season of the Municipal Orchestra and providing sufficient support be given, she will give a recital to the Shanghai public.

Miss El-Tour is in company with a distinguished organist, in the person of Mr. Joseph Yasser, who acts as her accompanist and prior to leaving Moscow was Professor at the Conservatoire there. He graduated in piano playing first, and then took up organ playing and theory of music.

Troops Threaten To Sack Suiyuan

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, May 9.—Unless the troops in Suiyuan are fully paid by Sunday, they will sack the city, according to information received from Suiyuan residents. Looting on a small scale took place in this city on May 1, requisitions being made from several shops.

The forces, which are under the command of General Tsai Chen-hsuan, Tutung of Suiquan, consist mostly of Shantung and Chihli men. They have not been paid for the last seven months. Tsai had promised to take them to Kansu, the rich province in the eyes of the Suiyuan garrison, because Tsai had been nominated for the tuchunship of Kansu.

It is not likely however that Tsai will be able to fulfil his promise on account of the strenuous opposition of the Kansu residents. When the troops looted Suiyuan, they stated that they were not willing to become brigands but they had been compelled to loot because of the desperate circumstances.

If mutiny culminates as threatened, prospects for Tsai to assume Tuchunship will forever be blighted. So their officers endeavored to pacify the soldiers. Merchants and officials have jointly telegraphed to Peking for financial assistance. All foreigners and the wealthy Chinese are leaving the city.

Some of the peaceably inclined soldiers are deserting their posts by scores in box cars of the new railway.

Members of the Women's Overseas League are asked to be on hand at 7:30 if possible to assist behind the scenes.

The Bandman Co.

The Bandman Opera Company's offering "Going Up" was repeated at the Olympic last night and proved itself up to the standard of other musical plays produced by Mr. Bandman. The plot and lines of the play were good, the music bright and tuneful, while the setting and dressing left nothing to be desired. A well filled house showed its appreciation of the fare provided and encores were the order of the night.

Miss Dora Dolaro sang some beautiful numbers and repeated her success of the "Maid of the Mountains;" Jerry Verno as Robert Street was excellent in every way, carrying practically the whole of the comedy on his shoulders. While Miss Rossiter, Mr. Crichton and Mr. Dan Mansfield played comparatively small parts they added to the success of the performance.

Tonight Miss Dolaro will repeat her success of last week in "The Maid of the Mountains," the occasion being a benefit performance to provide canteens for British and American sailors on the Yangtsze. In the small parts on the Yangtsze no provision is made for the men when on shore leave and as the gunboats are stationed some three to four weeks at one part, it can easily be seen how serviceable these canteens will prove.

The benefit is under the auspices of the Naval Forces, The British Women's Association, The American Woman's Club and the King's Daughters Society. Tickets are being sold by each of these organisations.

JAPAN'S PRINCE KING'S GUEST AT STATE BANQUET

Many Notables Attend Function At Palace—Felicitous Speeches

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 9.—The Crown Prince of Japan was tonight the guest of their Majesties at a banquet at Buckingham Palace. The State Ballroom was converted for the nonce into a banqueting hall, and was a scene of brilliance comparable even with prewar days. The company numbered 130, comprising their Majesties, a number of British royalties, all the Ambassadors and the flower of English life, which assembled in honor of the Imperial representative of Great Britain's mighty Eastern ally.

Over a score of Japanese guests formed part of the company, which was otherwise composed of leading ecclesiastics, statesmen, military and naval officers in resplendent uniforms and their wives, in charming dresses, wearing the most beautiful diamonds and pearls. The scene was enhanced by wonderful lighting and decorative effects which conspired to present an unforgettable sight. The renowned royal gold plate was used.

The long and imposing procession to the dining room was led by Crown Prince Hirohito, escorting the Queen. The King followed with the Princess Royal. Prince Kanin conducted Princess Mary, while the Prince of Wales took in Princess Christian. The Crown Prince sat between the King and Queen, on whose right sat Prince Kanin and then Princess Mary.

The banquet ended, the King proposed His Imperial Highness's health, all standing during the speech. His Majesty most warmly welcomed the Crown Prince as the guest of the British nation. He expressed deep appreciation of the signal compliment paid to Great Britain by the Emperor of Japan in entrusting to her his eldest son, this being the first occasion in history that the heir-apparent of Japan had left his native shores. The visit symbolised the long-standing Anglo-Japanese friendship.

BRITISH ADMIRATION

The British people admired the great nation of Japan, and was grateful for Japan's loyal support and the gallantry of her army and navy during the war. His Majesty was convinced that Anglo-Japanese friendly co-operation was an essential factor for the maintenance of the world's peace. He recalled that he had visited as a youth beautiful and unforgettable Japan, and paid a tribute to the warmth of the reception accorded him by the Japanese and their illustrious sovereign, the wise Emperor whose name was synonymous with the glories of a new Japan. It was a great pleasure to him he said, to have this opportunity of returning hospitality to his grandson.

He rejoiced immeasurably to learn that the health of the Emperor of Japan, which had caused great anxiety for the past year, was much inproved. He assured the Crown Prince of his unalterable esteem and regard for the Emperor.

Crown Prince Hirohito, replying, expressed deep gratitude for the King's very kind words, which, he was sure, would profoundly move the heart of his august father and all his people.

From the first moment he had touched the Eastern outposts of the great British Empire, he was everywhere accorded the most bountiful hospitality, which was doubtless a result of the King's command; but the culmination of the King's goodwill and hospitality in this warm and magnificent reception by their Majesties was a favor beyond his expectation, for which he found it impossible to express his gratitude adequately.

He was most happy to feel that, as the very first step of his European tour of study and observation, he had set foot on the beautiful shores of the great country whose invariable friendship and goodwill was prized very highly by the whole nation of Japan.

PRINCE GRATEFUL

His Imperial Highness was extremely gratified that the happy relations between their two allied countries had well stood the strain and stress of time, and would continue. As His Majesty had observed, it was one of the essential factors for the maintenance of the world's peace.

Referring to the King's considerate solicitude with regard to the opportuneness of his visit, the Crown Prince said he deemed himself fortunate in that his visit to Great Britain was at a vital moment. Nothing had impressed him more deeply than the courage and endurance, mingled with a fine spirit of moderation and common-sense, which Britons had always exhibited in the face of national troubles. He fervently and confidently hoped that the present trouble would prove but a transient cloud which would soon pass, making the sky only brighter.

He was genuinely interested in the King's telling of his trip to Japan and he was glad of the assurance that Prince Arthur of Connaught was pleased with his repeated visits to that country.

Crown Prince Hirohito thanked the King most heartily on behalf of himself, Prince Kanin, and the members of his suite, for His Majesty's wish that they would be at home in Great Britain. In that connection, he declared, the Prince of Wales, by his kindness of heart, had already made him feel at home on British soil. He expressed profound appreciation of the great courtesy shown him by His Royal Highness.

He was happy to say the Emperor of Japan's health had lately shown such marked improvement that he had granted him (the Crown Prince) leave to come on his present trip abroad. He concluded with an expression of thanks for the great honor done him and drank to the health and happiness of their Majesties.

London, May 9.—Crown Prince Hirohito was profoundly impressed by the cordiality and magnificence of his reception at Portsmouth. Never were arrangements for the landing of a royal guest at Portsmouth more picturesque. The blaze of decorations, the uniforms and the innumerable flags fluttering in the breeze formed a color scheme never to be forgotten.

It was a fine scene as the royal train left, the Prince of Wales and the Crown Prince standing side by side in the saloon at the salute, in response to the thunder of guns and the strains of the British and Japanese national anthems. Huge crowds in the vicinity of the station and along the narrow streets of Portsmouth cheered and waved as the train passed.

There were similar scenes of enthusiasm on the Crown Prince's arrival in London. Victoria Station was festooned with British and Japanese flags. The platform was bright with the uniforms of Japanese and British naval and military officers, and the scarlet tunics of a detachment of Grenadier Guards, whose band played the Japanese national anthem on the arrival of the train at four minutes past noon.

EARLY ARRIVALS

The Duke of Connaught, Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, Admiral Lord Beatty and Earl Curzon were among the early arrivals. Others who were present included members of the Cabinet, the Chief of the Air Staff, the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, the staff of the Japanese Embassy, members of the Japanese Society and the Japanese colony in London, and a guard of honor from the Scots Guards.

The King, in Field-Marshal's uniform, accompanied by the Duke of York in naval uniform, arrived at 12.25. His Majesty warmly greeted the Crown Prince on alighting from the train. The Crown Prince shook hands with all the distinguished personages, after which, in company with Prince Kanin, the King, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, he inspected the guard of honor.

The Crown Prince, Prince Kanin, the King and the Prince of Wales left the station in a state coach at 12.50 to the strains of the Japanese national anthem, and drove in procession to Buckingham Palace. Here the Imperial visitor was cordially received by the Queen and Princess Mary. The dense crowds in the streets were most enthusiastic.

After lunching with their Majesties at Buckingham Palace, Crown Prince Hirohito visited Queen Alexandra, and then deposited wreaths at the Cenotaph and at the tomb of the "unknown British warrior" in Westminster Abbey.

The King has appointed the Crown Prince a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath and a Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order.

Tokio, May 10.—The press on every side is commenting in the most grateful terms on the warmth and sincerity of the British welcome to the Crown Prince, and the elaborate arrangements made everywhere for his safety and entertainment.

U.S. ENVOYS ARE WARMLY GREETED AT VLADIVOSTOK

Tell Far Eastern Republic Men They Seek Acquaintance

(Delta News Agency)

Vladivostok, May 8.—In Vladivostok the arrival of the American mission to Chita is considered as possessing great significance at this time in Russian history. Mr. James Abbott, the commercial attache at the American legation at Tokio, is at the head of this mission and associated with him is the assistant military attache, Colonel Davis.

The Mission was received here by the under secretary of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Kojevnikoff, of the Far Eastern republic. Their reception indicated that the visit of this mission is considered as most important, and that affairs will be treated in a businesslike manner.

It also shows that the re-establishment of mutual understanding between the American and Russian people is considered to be an urgent matter. When interviewed, Mr. Kojevnikoff said that it afforded him extreme pleasure to welcome, in the name of the government, Messrs. Abbott and Davis as representatives of America. Especially so at this time, when the affairs of the Far Eastern republic show promise of settlement, the republic having been organised and its constitution worked out and the fundamental laws having been enacted.

Continuing he said that it could easily be understood by any one that the continuation of Japanese intervention is no longer justified in any way but is a crime against the Russian people. There has always been great sympathy between Russia and America, as the latter has been considered the fair land of liberty, and was a haven where many of our citizens found asylum during the regime of the czars. There has been only one dark spot in our relations with America, and that was caused by the participation of America in the intervention program. But this mistake was promptly corrected and America was the first country to evacuate her army from our territory. It goes without saying that the Russian people await the next logical step from America." That is, the solemn declaration to the effect that intervention has been discontinued on her suggestion to the other powers to likewise give up intervention.

SEEK INFORMATION

In replying to the speech of welcome Messrs. Abbott and Davis said that the American government had sent them for the purpose of getting acquainted with the real situation in the Far Eastern republic directly, and not relying on second hand information.

In parting with the distinguished guests Mr. Kojevnikoff expressed the hope that the recognition of the Far Eastern republic would take place in the near future; the American representatives replied that they would feel most happy if the result of their report to their government should result in the restoration of friendly historical relations between Russia and America.

Chita, May 8.—Premier Nikiforoff, former chairman of the Vladivostok government, and who was called to his present important post at the most important moment in the history of the Russian Far Eastern Republic by the first government of the Republic elected by the constituent assembly today granted an interview with the Dalta News agency representative. The Premier expressed his delight at the successful work of the constituent assembly in promulgating the fundamental political and economic laws the lack of which had so greatly handicapped the previous temporary government. Regarding the present government and cabinet Nikiforoff believed that judging from the close co-operation shown during the proceedings of the constituent assembly the policy of the Government would not be inconsistent with that of the cabinet.

Regarding Japanese intervention the Premier said that all friendly means had been used to secure the discontinuance of such with the result that there is now the occupation by Japan of Saghalien, Nikolaevsk, and Decastri, and an increase of Japanese forces in Vladivostok. He emphasised the fact that the Far Eastern republic would be forced to take a firm defensive stand in this matter.

CHILD IS KILLED

Three handcart coolies and a ricsha coolie were charged in the Mixed Court yesterday with causing the death of an eight-year-old Chinese girl on Chapoo Road Monday. The child was standing beside a hydrant when the ricsha crowded the cart in toward the curb and crushed against the hydrant. She was hurried to St. Luke's hospital but was already dead when examined there, her skull being fractured. The case was remanded.

JAPAN COLLEGE ATHLETES BREAK TWO FAR EAST RECORDS; SHOT PUT, MILE MARKS GO

Track And Field Meet Held To Select Men For Olympics Also Sees One Record Tied And Others Threatened

Two Far Eastern records were shattered, one was equalled and several others nearly equalled when approximately 100 athletes, most of them from the universities and higher schools in Tokio, competed at the Imperial University Agricultural School's track in Komaba in the Tokio preliminary meet to select men for the Japan meet next month when Japan's representatives will be chosen to enter the Far Eastern Games in Shanghai May 30 to June 4. The meet was held at Tokio on April 23 and 24.

The best record was made when K. Okazaki of Tokio Imperial University whittled 5 2-5 from the mile run record held for the Far Eastern meets by China. He covered the distance in 4 minutes 40 2-5 seconds. The old record was 4 minutes 45 4-5 seconds.

S. Asaoka of Waseda University put the shot 42 feet and 3 inches, beating the former record, held by the Philippines 37 feet and 4 1-4 inches. S. Nagata of Tokio Higher Normal School equalled the Far Eastern record of 24 4-5 seconds for the 220-yard dash.

RECORDS EXPECTED TO FALL

Several other records were nearly equalled, giving hope that the team which will represent Japan at the Shanghai meet will include some of the best men in track and field events that have ever been seen in the Far East Strengthened by men from other parts of the Empire who undoubtedly will win many places on the final team the aggregation should be able to break several of the Far Eastern records.

However a glance at the results of many of the events is enough to cause hope that the rest of Japan can produce better material for these, for the material in Tokio is plainly not up to standard. Without a bunch of good men from Osaka, and the other places in the Empire where preliminary meets are now being held the few good men who made their ability manifest Saturday and Sunday will be unable to gather a generous portion of the points at Shanghai for Japan.

The Tokio Higher Normal School and Waseda University respectively led all other teams at the meet. The former scored seven firsts, two seconds, three thirds and tied Waseda for a second.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, May 10.—The Japanese athletes who are to compete in the Far Eastern Olympic games will leave Kobe on May 20, on board the Yawata Maru. They will be accompanied by Professor Jigoro Kano, the noted master of jujitsu.

Baer SAYS "BUGS":

GINK KING OF SHARPSHOOTERS

Punched Weasel Over Transom And Through The Eye Of Needle

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Dear Sir:

You take the light pink crepe as the Colossus of Ignorance. You grab first place in the dance around the May Pole of Stupidity. Compared with Weasel Jones, your man had about as much chance as a fly between two sheets of Tanglefoot. Weasel was so tough that he only walked on his heels. He would go eleven miles out of his way to step on a tower. At the age of three months he was out on parole. When other kids were inhaling their A, B, Abs, Weasel already had a long career of crime behind him and a carload ordered for the next morning.

Yours, from Mendota, Illinois,
RUDOLPH SCHOTT.

Weasel Jones may have been a tough client in other towns, but the records show that he walked into Roughtown with his hands raised over his buttonized head. The fame of the delicate municipality of Roughtown had soaked into and permeated all parts and segments of the world. The Weasel surrendered on suspicion to the first fugitive he encountered on his way to Gink Fowler's home nest.

It was not this fugitive's day for small fry. He passed the Weasel up to an apprentice Roughtown thug who couldn't find a baby carriage to fit the Weasel. It looked as if he would have to apply to the Audubon Society for some food. He walked pedestrialy up Roughtown's most luxurious alley, looking in vain for a kind face. As everybody knew at that laggard date, kind faces had been abolished by a filibuster in the Roughtown Congress of Hate.

FOWLER HAD 'EM ALL

The Weasel was in like a Democratic president. He tried to slide into an auction sale where they were raffling off family thumbprints. Now, thumb engravings were a great piece of tribal triumph in Roughtown.

It was the boast of Gink Fowler's clan that they had the original of every family thumb etching that had been taken in the last thousand years. You could find a Fowler thumb stamp on everything in town. Police blotter jewelry, doorknobs, safes, vaults, wedding presents, anything of value.

It was the Fowler boast that they were never defeated in a thumb-marking contest. Others might put the first thumb seal on jewelry for money. But when the police came to judge the carnival the Fowlers were always declared the winners.

The Weasel escaped from the auction with a lot of thumb-prints most of which were in his eye. Encouraged by his lackadaisical reception, he decided to beard Gink in his den.

DUCK SOUP FOR GINK

Gink refused to meet him. When the gong rang, the Weasel dashed out of his corner and careened joyously around the ring in approved Denishawn technique. He threw a nosegay of garlands over Gink's head. Gink stood puzzled by the ferocity of the attack. He toured down to the canvas, while anxious thousands slept in their seats. Although Weasel didn't know it, resin was Gink's dish. He was excursioned to the floor by a vicious crash of lillies over his skull and then came back greatly refreshed by a meal of resin en casserole.

He slammed Weasel on the chin and Weasel sailed out of the ring and over a transom. That was sharpshooting. On the other side of the door was a judge holding a knitting needle. The Weasel went right through the eye of the needle. Gink was awarded the Marksmanship medal of Roughtown.

AUSTRALIANS, IN SURREY TEST, PILE UP BIG LEAD

Score At End Of First Innings Is 357 (For Nine Wickets) To 79

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 9.—Rain delayed the resumption of the match between the Australians and Surrey at the Oval until 2:35 this afternoon. The attendance numbered 12,000. The Australians, who had scored 325 for six wickets on Saturday, carried their score to 357 for nine wickets, and then declared. Collins, who was batting four ad a-half hours for 162, played a stolid game, and only added four to his previous score.

Surrey gave a feeble display against the bowling of Armstrong and McDonald, who dismissed them for 79. Armstrong's analysis was six wickets for 38, and McDonald's four wickets for 29. Following on, the county had scored 22 without loss when stumps were drawn for the day.

Lancashire beat Northants by an innings and 52 runs. In the Northants second innings R. Tyldesley took four wickets for 16, and Heap four for 18.

S.V.C. INSPECTION MAY 12

By reason of another change in program decided upon yesterday the annual review and inspection of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps will be held at the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon instead of today.

Baseball In Far East Discussed In Spalding Guide, Which Has Arrived

Fast approaching the half century mark, the Spalding Guide appears once more chronicling the renewal of activities in the national game for 1921. John B. Foster, who succeeded the late Henry Chadwick a dozen years ago upon the death of the "Father of Baseball," continues as the editor. Mr. Foster's years of experience brings to his labors on the Guide the knowledge that only an intimate acquaintance with baseball can give, and this year's edition reflects the work that has been devoted to the book.

For the first time a chapter is devoted to baseball in China and Japan and one headline reads "China's Wonderful Series." The Guide also contains a resume of the Shanghai American School season but the Philippines appear to have been neglected.

The 1921 Guide arrived at this office yesterday, coming in the Empress of Japan mail.

THE PLAYING RULES

The playing rules are not the same as they were in 1920. There have been certain changes made by mutual consent of all leagues. The game is to be played as it was in the latter part of 1920. That "dead ball" rule, which was inserted in the code to provide for the accidental hitting of the bat by a pitched ball, has been eliminated. The batters may object, but they objected so much when real fouls were called against them that the rule had to be discarded. It threw too much upon the shoulders of the umpires.

The rule which established a home run hit as one which goes over the fence of the playing field at a certain point has been annulled. The home run is now judged as it was in former years by where the ball goes out of the sight of the umpire. Of course, this will keep some ball players from making home runs, but the new rule, which was tried in the early part of 1920, caused controversy, and rather than add to the opportunities for argument it was agreed to return to the old way, which is really not exactly just to the batter.

SEPARATE ARRANGEMENT

The arrangement of the rules in their separate cover and with their marginal index and explanations made by Editor Foster has proved to be a world's home run record for Guides. The detachable volume, which may be separated from the Guide proper and used as a pocket manual, is the joy of officials, players and umpires. It received the most flattering endorsements from presidents of leagues, major league umpires, minor league umpires and small boys—hundreds of the latter. For the first time the boy could carry the rules around in his pocket without inconveniencing the fishhooks, pieces of string and other sundries with which every boy's pockets are stocked. In addition to that, the rules were explained so clearly to him that he really knew what they meant.

"KNOTTY PROBLEMS"

Each year brings its own crop of "knotty problems," and although basically the question narrow down to possibly half a dozen points, the variety of distortions to which the meaning of the rules is subjected makes it seem almost hopeless. The good work goes on, however, and this year's instalment will be found useful and instructive not only to the novice but often to the fan who may think he "knows the rules backward."

Last season the editor of the Guide answered letters and telegrams asking for instructions about plays on the field from every point of the United States and even remote corners of the globe. The Guide's bureau of information has developed into a regular department of the publication, where queries may be sent.

MAJOR LEAGUE FOUL LINES

"Babe" Ruth's great hitting led to numerous arguments concerning the length of various home run drives made in major league ball parks. Mr. Foster went to considerable trouble to get the correct measurements of the foul lines in those parks and presents them in a chart that gives at a glance the correct distances. Concerning the story of home runs, there is a chapter which not only gives the

Not until his retirement from the ring recently did Raymond Vittet, prominent French welterweight boxer, admit that since 1917 he had been fighting though deprived of the sight of his left eye and the use of three fingers of his left hand.

The fingers and the sight of his eye Vittet lost in the war in 1916, after which he was discharged from the army. But in 1917, without telling even his closest friends about his eye, he took up fighting again and since that time has engaged in forty battles, most of which he won on points.

Former Collegians Wrestle 5½ Hours Until Exhausted

Bangor, Me., March 20.—After struggling five and a half hours for wrestling supremacy Tom Davis, former captain of the University of Maine football team, and Ernest Abbott, a former Colby College athlete, were forced to quit from exhaustion today. Spectators of the long contest demanded that it be called off, and the referee declared it a draw.

Davis was champion wrestler at Camp Devens while Abbott has been prominent among Maine devotees of the mat sport. Both are residents of this place.

PADDOCK, PREMIER SPRINTER, IS ALSO A GOOD STUDENT; HAUNTS COLLEGE LIBRARY

Racing Is "Good Exercise," Says World's Record Holder, But It Is Not His Ultimate Goal; Has Won 152 Out Of 160 Major Races

Twenty years old, keen-eyed and avowedly optimistic, Charles W. Paddock, holder of the world's championship for the 100-meter dash, and the youth who at a college meet at Berkley recently broke all existing world's records for 220 yards, at 20 4-5 seconds, is not only a good athlete, but, according to this instructors, he is a good student.

Paddock is a senior, majoring in English, in the school of arts and sciences at the University of Southern California; member of the Delta Sigma Rho, the national debating society; possessor of a medal for winning the Southern California inter-scholastic championship in debating, and a scholarship member of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity.

When not training with his coach on the athletic field, he is in the university library writing imaginative descriptions of that fair phantom land "west of the Hesperides" which members of the writing cult from ages past sought to perpetuate in beautiful letters.

With him, he says, racing is "good exercise," but it is not an ultimate goal.

"I run," declares young Paddock, "becauce it seems, and always has seemed, perfectly natural for me. My father, when he was younger, did a little sprinting for Michigan, and I can't remember when I wasn't trying to beat my school boy friends to the third telephone pole or the corner store."

In the grammar schools of Jamesville, Tex., where Paddock was born, the only son of a middle aged couple, it was thought he was going to be a "delicate boy." He was thin and frail in appearance, but, realising that staying indoors reading his father's fascinating stock of books would "help matters." Paddock says he adopted running as a hobby primarily as a means of keeping himself part of the time out in the sunshine, busy at some "good exercise."

During his racing days, Paddock has run 160 major races entailing championships of greater or less degree, and of this number has won 152, taking second place in five and third in three. He won the championship of the United States at Boston in the 220 yard event in 1920 and a week after this race, at Brooklyn, broke the world's record for the 100 meter dash on grass, in 10 3-5 seconds. At the Olympian games, he won the 100 meter race, in an event for which 350

PEKING ORDER TO ALL RAILROADS BARS DEADHEADS

Thousands, Soldiers And Civilians, Have Been 'Bluffing' Way Past Guards

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, May 8.—Travel conditions on all Chinese railroads are to be improved at once as a means of increasing the income from paying passengers and making their conditions more comfortable. The Ministry of Communications believes it can improve the lot of travelers and increase its own revenue by eliminating all unnecessary free transportation.

Investigations recently conducted showed that thousands of persons travel on the railroads without tickets or without pay. They take possession of the first and second class coaches are attended by servants fill the compartments with luggage and in general make traveling a bugbear for those who pay their way. Soldiers board trains and ride without tickets or money. They sleep in the dining cars and refuse to remove their feet from chairs to make room for paying patrons.

All these evils must cease, and hereafter military and civil governors may travel on passes, accompanied by no more than 10 servants and carrying only 500 pounds of baggage. District officials may travel on passes by limiting their baggage to 300 pounds and taking only two servants. Government delegates and officials will have pass privileges according to their station.

Use of passenger trains by all the common soldiers of the provinces however is to cease and train guards will be backed up by the Government in demanding transportation of passengers. The Peking-Mukden and Peking-Hankow lines are said to be the worst in this respect. Often a dozen passengers will board a train. When asked to show their tickets they refuse and the guard is powerless. The passengers go on to their destination.

It has been the custom for officials of all ranges, common soldiers and many civilians to board trains at their will, bluff their way and take the best accommodations. Soldiers especially will be barred hereafter unless they have papers showing that they are on an official mission and have regularly issued passes. Dining cars will no longer be used as sleeping coaches for soldiers and others holding third class tickets, it is said.

The new order is effective at once.

Clock Once Owned By Putnam Still Going

It Is Still Keeping Time And Has Been Placed On Exhibition

Rochester, March 26.—A relic of the olden times in the shape of a "Grandfather's Clock" has been placed in the hall in Masonic Temple in Honeoye Falls. The clock is owned by Dr. Harry R. Marlatte, a leading Mason of that village, and because of its history it is worthy of more than passing notice.

While there are no dates about the ancient piece of mechanism to indicate its real age, there is no doubt that it is nearly 200 years old, with it original wooden works still beating time.

This affidavit, sworn to before a notary public, vouches for its history: "This clock was made in England and was brought to this country by a man named Davis and was afterward sold by him to Israel Putnam, and at his death was handed down to his eldest son, Israel Putnam jr. (the famous General of the Revolutionary War). At his death it became the property of James S. Putnam. After his death I came into possession of it and it was sold by me to Dr. Harry R. Marlatte in August, 1920."

'IF YOUR WIFE' I'D POISON YOUR TEA

'If I Were Your Husband I'd Drink It,' Replies Candidate To Woman Heckler

London, March 26.—Women took a prominent part, as has been cabled to The World, in the recent hotly-contested big election campaign in Cardiganshire, Wales, in which Capt. Ernest Evans, Premier Lloyd George's secretary, finally won by 3,590 majority over Llewelyn Williams, Independent Liberal. Some enlivening incidents marked the canvass.

"If I were your wife I would put poison in your tea," a woman shouted at Llewelyn Williams, who was addressing a meeting.

"And if I were your husband I would drink it," he shot back.

The Suffragists brought a robust influence to the Cardigan election and exemplified three methods of modern feminine appeal. Mrs. Lloyd George represented the "womanly appeal," saying:

"We women cannot go into all these political details, but vote for my husband or his followers and he will look after them for us."

Lady Simon represented the emotional appeal, an Irishwoman pleading for Ireland.

Lady Bonham-Carter, Mr. Asquith's daughter, was the gleaming diamond among the women canvassers, the ultra-modern style, the style which best accords with woman's claim for equality of citizenship. All accounts agree that all three women were effective, but how teasing it is that, with the election returns at hand, no one can guess even approximately how many votes each of these speakers won over.

Quezon Backs Down On Johnson Charge

(Reuter's Service)

Manila, (by mail).—Mr. Manuel Quezon, President of the Philippine Senate, who created a sensation some months ago by bitterly attacking Justice E. Finley Johnson of the Supreme Court, has made a complete written apology, which has been published in the Manila newspapers.

Mr. Quezon's criticism of Justice Johnson was made a few days following the departure of the latter to the United States to confer with President Harding in regard to Philippine questions. Mr. Quezon charged Justice Johnson with political meddling, and with prejudice against the Nacionalista party and ex-Governor Francis Burton Harrison, and cited decisions given by the judge in support of his view.

In his apology, now made public, Mr. Quezon says: "I gladly withdraw what I have said about you. I wish to add that I have nothing personal against you. I have every reason to be friendly with you, as indeed I am."

FABIAN GIVES AWAY SECRETS

Playing every day in a ball park keeps the ground keeper active. Where the park is vacant when the home team is on the road there is a chance for the grass to grow and the groundsmen to rest. Not so at the Polo Grounds, however. "When the Giants are away, the Yankees play." Those who are familiar with the appearance of the Polo Grounds throughout the season appreciate the care which the field gets. The Guide therefore presents an article by Henry Fabian, the groundsman, in which he gives directions for laying out a league diamond, including his famous spider web or turtle back method. Those who wish to emulate Mr. Fabian's geometrical designs and measurements will find this of much interest.

WORLD SERIES

As the Guide is essentially a chronicle of the current events of the year in the championship arena of the major and minor leagues, the chapters referring to the races in the various organisations are as complete as could be expected. The world series is covered in detail, including brief sketches of the players, and the official averages of the National and American leagues included as a matter of record.

A VARIETY OF SUBJECTS

"American Forces in Germany" is the title of one chapter in the Guide, and while it tells in some detail of the games of the Doughboys on the Rhine, it is also interesting to conjecture what effect these games are having on the native small boy who watches the games of our overseas lads. The late A. G. Spalding once remarked that "baseball follows the flag," and with the natural instinct of the small boy of any clime to copy the grownups, who knows what seed is being planted in the way of making baseball popular "over there."

Other topics include an article on the late Jack Highlands, of Harvard, who had he entered the professional field would undoubtedly have shone with as much brilliancy there as he did in his college years; the major and minor league agreement; league meetings; list of major league spring training camps; the National Baseball Federation; baseball in Japan and China, and other appropriate topics.

The illustrations as usual comprise an attractive feature, action pictures of leading players and groups of minor league teams forming this section.

Paddock, Sprinter, Also Good Student

Paddock has an eight foot racing stride and uses a sixteen foot leap to touch the tape. He weighs 160 pounds, and his training, he says, consists chiefly in obeying his trainer, Dean Cromwell, of the University of Southern California.

Paddock denies the "sports comment" that he is superstitious or that that is why, before a race, he raises his arms aloft three times.

"I do this," he says, "not because I'm superstitious, but to fill my lungs with fresh air. I don't raise my arms for luck—I tap on wood. Sprinting is an uncertain game; it is so short business that anything may happen. Before a race, I invariably tap on wood chiefly for the psychology of the thing. It keeps me from getting overconfident, and I go in feeling squarely up against my opponent."

Paddock's athletic record stands behind him. But with his artistic work, he admits there is a difference. With that so far, he confesses, he has practically got no further than wearing his hat on the back of his head and putting his feet on his desk in the editorial rooms of a Pasadena daily paper and trying, ineffectually, to look literary when the boys insist on calling him "Charlie."

People who try to figure out exactly how Paddock wins says that in a dash of 100 yards he makes a fraction more than thirty five eight foot strides in addition to the great sixteen-foot leap, which is a feature of his final spurt to the tape.

E. W. (Dad) Moulton, veteran trainer of Stanford University athletes, recently described Paddock's running form as very peculiar "a sort of a bound or climbing-the-rope motion."

After Paddock broke the world's record at Berkeley by running the 220-yard dash in 20 4-5 seconds, he went to Stanford and smashed the existing official record again by running the distance in 21 seconds flat. Moulton said he never had seen a man run so fast before.

Canton Pictured From Air For Movie

For the first time in history a movie man has taken pictures of a Chinese city from an airplane. According to a telegram received yesterday by Manager George E. Weis of Pathe Orient, Mr. Simon, a moving picture operator who recently joined the local Pathe people, took movies of Canton while flying over the city Monday afternoon. Mr. Simon went to Canton to film the inauguration ceremonies of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. The pictures will be screened all over the world as a chapter in the Pathe Weekly. Mr. Simon will shortly return to Shanghai, where he is to film local news events.

CANAL FROM RHINE TO RHONE ASSURES BIG WATER POWER

Millerand Promises State Aid For Hydroelectric Projects Planned

MILLION HORSE - POWER

Work Of Four Years Will Be Paid For By Savings In A Similar Period

Paris, March 19.—The greatest series of engineering efforts ever attempted in France, according to President Millerand's view, is the Rhine to the Rhone canal, with its allied hydroelectric projects, the sites of which M. Millerand visited last week. At that time he assured the people of the Rhone Valley that he would give all the assistance possible to a realisation of the scheme, which aims at supplying sufficient power to all the great textile industries in the south of France.

The canal already exists, but it must be widened to permit the continuation of the Rhine shipping and to make possible the linking up of the North Sea and the Mediterranean.

At many points the Rhone passes through gorges almost as majestic as those of Colorado. For the present, however, the engineers are concentrating their attention on two huge dams, each of them 200 feet high, for the building of which the Department of the Rhone was said to have been promised sufficient funds, but it will need the Government's assistance to erect the necessary electric stations, with an adequate distribution of the electric service.

The first dam is to be built near Genissiat and will block the narrow gorge between Belle Garde (Ain) and the Swiss frontier in such a manner as to create a lake of twenty square miles. The American system of locks is being considered, which will make possible the use of the whole of the falls for the development of electric power. It is estimated that 120,000 horse-power may be developed here under usual conditions in the Rhone or double this power when the river is swollen during the winter floods.

The second dam will be built at Malpertuis. It will be 100 feet high, with the generating plant located in the gorge itself at the foot of the dam. This plant will be sufficient to add another 300,000 horse-power to the energy derived from the river.

Other hydroelectric plants are envisaged at suitable points in the forges, the engineers at work on the plans estimating that there will be a total production of more than 1,000,000 horse-power of energy.

In order to avoid the danger of catastrophes in these mountain regions it has been decided that each dam shall be of re-enforced concrete and surrounded by brick, the thickness of each dam being more than 150 feet. It is estimated that it will require at least four years to complete the project, but the entire cost of the works will be repaid at the present charges for electric power within five years after commencing to utilise systematically the power of the Rhone.

British Exporters Oppose Credit Plan

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—The Manchester Association of Exporters and Importers has addressed a letter to the Government declaring that in its opinion an extension of the export credit scheme to India and the Far East would have a detrimental effect on the present state of the markets. The Association considers that the exchange banks are capable of dealing adequately with the situation.

M'Cormack Buyer Of $25,000 Romney

London, March 26.—The mystery as to who brought the $25,000 Romney "The Clavering Children" at Christie's sale the other day has been disclosed by Frank J. Clarke, an art dealer, who announces that he made the purchase for John McCormack, the famous Irish-American tenor.

"I was instructed to secure the picture," he said, "even at a considerably higher figure if necessary."

BIG NEW HOTELS FOR CHERBOURG

Being Built By Steamship Lines For Intending U. S. Citizens Quarantined There

Cherbourg, France, March 26.—All the transatlantic steamship lines are about to build enormous hotels here for housing emigrants bound for America while they are undergoing the quarantine prescribed by the new United States immigration laws.

Steerage passengers must remain in quarantine here for four full days before going on board ship. Hitherto this city has had no suitable accommodations for them. The Royal Mail Packet Company has just acquired a plot of land on which to erect an emigrant hotel. The Cunard, the White Star and the Red Star lines are combining to build another to take care of 2,500 persons. The United States Mail Steamship Company likewise will build a hotel for the use of steerage passengers.

LESSON OF THAW IN LONDON COURT

Justice Darling Recalls It—Jury Not Impressed By Plea Of Brain Storm

London, March 26.—The Harry Thaw case of long ago was brought to public memory here the other day when Justice Darling, a celebrated wit of English bench, referred to it while hearing a murderer's counsel plead against imposing the extreme penalty. The prisoner's lawyers had been arguing the possibility that their client was temporarily insane when he committed the crime, whereupon Justice Darling, unsympathetically referring to Thaw, broke in:

"As long as a certain man was in fear of the electric chair his friends said his subsonscious mind had dominated his actions. When he escaped the chair his friends clamored for his release because they said his conscious mind had gained the mastery again."

The jury apparently agreed with Justice Darling's attitude, for it disregarded the plea.

Doughty Convicted, Echo Of Small Case

(Reuter's Service)

Toronto, May 9.—John Doughty has been sentenced to six years' imprisonment as the result of a sensational trial on a charge of stealing bonds to the value of £21,000 from his former employer, Ambrose Small, a millionaire, who disappeared from Toronto in December, 1919.

tary N. H. Langley Smith, and many other members.

The new committee was elected en bloc: Messrs. N. S. Brown, A. M. Cannon, A. C. Clear, O. M. Green, C. G. S. Mackie, D. McNeill, E. C. Pearce, F. W. Potter, C. J. Scott and A. Brooke Smith.

The right of the Japanese government to tax Japanese here with income taxes on coupons and other securities in Japan was questioned by Mr. E. W. Noel. He suggested that the incoming committee should make investigation. The tax has been raised to four percent, which, it was said, was rather extraordinary. The chairman promised that the matter would be looked into.

Chairman Pearce in his speech said:

THE CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

"Gentlemen: The annual report has been in your hands for some few days and following the usual custom I propose to dwell shortly on some of the matters referred to and those which have engaged the attention of your committee during the twelve months ending March 31 last.

"Our membership has rather fallen off for the past year, the number being 328 against 376 in March, 1920. The decrease is mainly due to the list of members not having been kept up to date during the last few years when many members left Shanghai to serve with H. M. Forces or to assist their country in other directions. With the termination of hostilities it became possible to revive the list and in doing so it was found that the names of many who have now permanently left Shanghai should be struck off. It is feared a few more names will yet have to be withdrawn, but I am hoping that every present member will give his assistance in bringing the membership list at least up to the previous figure.

"Your acting secretary, Mr. C. D. Dixon, was recently transferred to Chungking. I should like to place on record today our obligation to him for his able assistance during the year. The secretaryship has been placed in the hands of Mr. Langley Smith who was appointed acting secretary from April 1. Your chairman, Mr. P. W. Massey, recently left for England, and as your vice-chairman it devolves upon me to address you this afternoon.

DEPLORES INTERNAL UNREST

"The review of Chinese political events during 1920 is so fully dealt with in the report that there is little for me to add thereto. I cannot help thinking, however, in view of recent reports of fierce fighting in Honan, brigandage in North Kiangsu, an attack by pirates on a revenue cruiser, robbery in the Yangtsze Gorges, the self-appointment of Dr. Sun Yat-sen as president of South China, the troubles in connexion with Mongolia, in fact a sea of unrest throughout the whole country, that all these do not point to that restoration of a peaceful China that we are all so anxious to see.

"So far as Shanghai is concerned, the freeing from brigandage of the Upper Yangtsze, the main artery for our trade to Western China, is most important. It would appear that almost every district in these regions has its own particular brigand to coerce all boats passing to pay tribute or take the consequences. China is striving most energetically to be recognised by both the European Powers and America as a nation of equal rank and yet what do we see: she is not even able to afford the first elementary protection to travellers in spite of the enormous amount of money being squandered annually on the so-called soldiery of her many provincial tuchuns. Yet, gentlemen, with all these troubles and difficulties that true trading instinct of the Chinese merchant is not by any means crushed and the regeneration of China, resting as it always will on the common sense of the general public, must become materialised at some future date; let us hope it is not far distant.

"We sympathise with the Chinese in all this political unrest and would assure our Chinese friends that disturbed as the country now is, we are always willing to show them our true friendship as we have done in the past and to assist them in placing their country upon a sound financial footing. It is our desire to see a prosperous China, a united China and an enlightened China, and as already pointed out, if there is anything this association can do which makes for any improvement in the present state of affairs in China we should help.

SUBSIDIARY COPPER COINS

"The question of a Chinese mint in Shanghai for minting dollars is fully dealt with on page 5 of the report and I need not, therefore, dwell further on the subject this afternoon.

"The extraordinary influx, however, of copper currency into Shanghai is having a very detrimental effect upon the purchasing powers of the poorer class of Chinese in the Settlement as well as upon foreigners, especially in respect of the cost of market commodities, we have had some very interesting details from Mr. McColl of the Tramway Co. on this subject of subsidiary copper coinage, and the same have been duly forwarded through the kind services of Sir Everard Fraser to the British Minister in Peking to lay before the Chinese Government. I am glad to say from a recent letter received from Sir Everard Fraser that the diplomatic body are taking up the matter seriously.

"In fact the Waichiaopu have been informed that in the opinion of the diplomatic body the time has arrived when some restriction should be placed on the issue of copper coinage, of whatever standard, by the provincial authorities. It is, therefore, hoped that the recent enormous influx into Shanghai of 16¼ million light weight one cent copper coins will impress more prominently than ever the following points for most careful consideration.

"First. The importance of still more urgent representations being made to the Chinese authorities in order to bring about some limitation to the present overproduction of copper coins.

"Secondly.—The advisability of preventing the further exploitation of this market by indiscriminate shipments of these coins from provincial mints.

"There is no indication at present of any serious attempt being made to fulfil China's treaty obligations for the reform of her currency, and it is now clearer than ever that foreign assistance and supervision are essential to the carrying out of this great task. In the interests of the Chinese people and all who have business with China, that beneficent work ought to be undertaken without further delay, as unless some such steps are taken, grave trouble at no far distant date must ensue. The seriousness of the position may perhaps be better appreciated when it is mentioned that the three Tramway Companies in Shanghai have already found it necessary to publish notices informing the public that no light weight coins will be accepted in payment of fares.

TO PROTECT TRADE MARKS

"During the year just closed, your committee has been closely engaged on the question of trade marks, and has appointed representatives of this association to serve on a special sub-committee which has been established jointly by ourselves and the British Chamber of Commerce to consider in detail the more technical aspects of the proposed arrangement. The sub-committee has been sitting continuously for the last 18 months and our thanks are due to those members who have given so much time and study to this matter and whose deliberations will we hope produce satisfactory results.

"You will, gentlemen, no doubt readily appreciate the great difficulties that must surround the enactment of any arrangement of this kind, vitally concerning as it would not only the business of British merchants throughout China but also the interests of a large number of nationals of many other countries. Although much has been accomplished, much remains still to be done, but I can express the hope which your committee entertains that the time is nearing when we shall have our trade marks sufficiently protected not only in Shanghai but in China generally.

CHINESE STUDENTS IN U.K.

"In our report this year we have made rather a special feature of the subject of the education of Chinese students in Great Britain and have published for your information a memorandum prepared for the London Committee by Dr. H. B. Morse, which I commend to your careful attention.

"In this connexion I may tell you that an executive committee formed out of the names of those referred to in the letter from Mr. Phillips of March 31, 1920 and published in the report, have had printed in pamphlet form a handbook of information for Chinese students proceeding to Great Britain for professional study, compiled by Miss E. G. Kemp, F.R.S. G.S., of the Anglo-Chinese. Friendship Bureau (London). I will read you part of Chapter I which sets forth the reason for its publication.

"Chinese students have experienced great difficulty in obtaining reliable information before going to England as to the facilities afforded there for the study of different subjects, for the length of time required, the cost of living and other details. The Anglo-Chinese Educational Committee (Shanghai) in co-operation with the Anglo-Chinese Friendship Bureau (London) has therefore decided to issue a short handbook to supply the general information required, while more detailed information can be obtained from the committee with regard to the various universities and colleges. The committee would further advise all students to get into touch with it before starting, or failing that, with some person resident in England (see addresses at end of handbook) who is competent to give them help or advice in making their arrangements on arrival.

BRITISH MINISTER'S VISITS

"The visit in April, 1920, by Sir Beilby Alston, K.C.M.G., C.B., to Shanghai en route to Peking to take up the post of His Majesty's minister in China was an opportunity, and a very pleasant one, of discussing in a friendly and informal manner current affairs. Sir Beilby has on divers occasions been in charge of British affairs in Peking, besides which having been specially attached to the China department in the foreign office at home; he is, therefore, more than qualified to hold the position of British minister to China. In this connexion it is specially advantageous to have a gentleman appointed to Peking whose duties have for so many years connected him with the foreign office. Rightly or wrongly, the belief has become prevalent that the British Government unable to take all world questions simultaneously into its purview, has been compelled to concentrate on other problems momentarily more pressing from a British point of view and to leave in abeyance those far eastern questions which to us on the spot appear so vital. This policy cannot continue indefinitely. The volume of trade with China as compared with Great Britain's world trade may be small but everything points to the fact that China and the Pacific are to be the focus of the world's politics during the coming century and we cannot, therefore, but congratulate ourselves on being represented in Peking by one whose position both now in China and formerly at the foreign office enables him to bring these important issues to the notice of Downing Street with so much force and conviction.

"Again only the other day Sir Beilby Alston did Shanghai the honor of a visit on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the new building for the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, that institution which has for so many years been the bulwark of British finance in China.

"During Sir Beilby's absence on leave, Shanghai was visited by Mr. R. H. Clive, C.M.G., H. M. Charge d'Affaires, in November, on the occasion of the Conference of British Chambers of Commerce of China and Hongkong.

"I mention these visits as being of particular interest; they not only enable all British Associations represented in Shanghai to obtain the views of H. M. Representative in China but on the other hand it is a twofold pleasure, first to have the honor of making their personal acquaintance and secondly to receive first hand the knowledge of the great interest our Minister takes in the welfare of Britons throughout China.

"I must now pass on to the visit of Vice-Admiral Sir Alex. Duff, K.C.B. This gallant gentleman and his officers did this Association the honor of dining with them on April 16, 1920. This dinner is in the minds of all those present and will I am sure always stand out as one of the most pleasant functions this Association has been able to hold in recent years.

"Our accounts call for little comment, we started the financial year with a small credit of Tls. 45.45 and we close with a small credit carried forward to the new account of Tls. 221.92. Your thanks are due to Mr. L. M. Lemaire who has again so kindly audited your accounts.

THE LATE MR. JAMIESON

"Before closing, Gentlemen, I should like to make special reference to the death during the year of Mr. George Jamieson, C.M.G. who for so many years ably occupied the position of President of the China Association in London. By the older members of the Association in Shanghai he will be well remembered as Consul-General and Acting Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for China and Japan. His place in the Association will be very difficult to fill and I should like today to express the Association's deepest sympathy to his relatives in their sad bereavement.

I now beg to propose the adoption of the report and accounts, but before placing the resolution before the meeting shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability any questions relating thereto which members may wish to put."

France Celebrates Joan Of Arc's Day

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, May 10.—The celebrations in honor of the memory of Joan of Arc, held throughout France on Sunday, were of a most enthusiastic character, particularly where they coincided with the departure of drafts for the Rhineland. There were, however, anti-war demonstrations at Limoges, Brest and other places, wherein the red flag featured. Shots fired by a mob engaged in one of these demonstrations at Pere Saint Gervais led to a conflict in which forty police and municipal guards and thirty of the demonstrators were injured.

Jap Religious Sect Headquarters Raided

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, May 10.—It was learned for the first time today that on February 12 the headquarters of the Omotokyo, a religious sect at Ayabe, were searched by a party of judges, procurators and more than 200 police, for evidence in support of allegations of blasphemy and the publication of matter inimical to the constitution. The publisher of the Taisho Nichi Nichi was arrested on the same day.

The Far Eastern Insurance Co., Ltd

A fine tribute was paid to the memory of its late general manager, Mr. William Sanford Jackson, who died Saturday afternoon, at the fifth ordinary general meeting of shareholders of the Far Eastern Insurance company, held yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Edward I. Ezra, the chairman of the board of directors, in opening his annual statement asked the shareholders present to stand while he read:

"Before proceeding with the business of the meeting I take this opportunity, on behalf of the shareholders, directors and staff of the company, to give public expression to our deep sorrow for the death of our general manager, William Sanford Jackson. Mr. Jackson was the leading spirit in the creation of the Far Eastern Insurance Company. The rapid growth of the company's business in the short period of its existence is mainly due to his energy and we shall greatly miss his guiding hand.

"A message of condolence on behalf of the shareholders, directors and staff is being sent to Mr. Jackson's nearest relatives in England and I feel sure that this action will meet with your unanimous approval."

There were present at the meeting shareholders representing 17,420 shares. Directors H. E. Arnhold, E. T. Byrne, J. Harold Dollar and H. M. Tibbey, were present.

Mr. Ezra in his speech said:

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

With reference to the report and accounts to December 31, 1920, which have been in your hands for some days we will, with your permission, take them as read.

"The balance at credit of working account for 1919 and former years, viz: Tls. 132,415.04 should show a satisfactory margin of profit after liquidating claims still outstanding on that account. Your directors however consider that it would be premature to allocate any portion of this balance to a reserve fund at present.

"The working account for the twelve months ending December 31, 1920, shows a large increase in gross premium income, viz: Tls. 993,363.48 as compared with Tls. 560,821 in the previous year. The net premium after deducting reinsurances amounts to Tls. 676,147.02 against Tls. 408,987.24 in 1919. Interest account shows a satisfactory increase, the revenue from this source for 1920 being Tls. 74,931.34 as compared with Tls. 57,229.34 in 1919. The balance at credit of working account, viz: Tls. 477,123.93 is more than double the balance shown last year, viz: Tls. 209,716.13. It must be borne in mind however that the 1919 working account was debited with the depreciation in the market value of local investments and loss in exchange amounting to no less than Tls. 148,774 whereas the 1920 account has been credited with Tls. 65,306.17 by reason of the appreciation in market value of our local securities and the fall in exchange.

"It is impossible to forecast the result of the working account for 1920 at this early stage but we have some considerable losses in course of settlement. The directors, however, consider that they can with safety recommend the payment of the same dividend as that declared last year, viz, six percent or Tls. 1.20 per share.

ASSETS ARE GREATER

"Turning to the balance sheet you will notice that our total assets are shown at Tls. 1,325,210.74 as compared with Tls. 1,087,984.87 last year. A new item appears, viz: Property account—land and buildings—valued at Tls. 132,128.10. This figure represents the cost of a site and building in Harbin including considerable additions which we have made to the building. Our property is situated in the center of the business district of Harbin. Our branch office is located there and the rest of the building is leased to various tenants at rentals which show a very satisfactory return on our investment.

"With the exception of our permanent gold investments which have, as previously, been shown at their Tael cost price, sterling exchange has been taken at 4/1 and gold dollar exchange at 72¼, these being the rates for telegraphic transfer on December 31, 1920. The rates on December 31, 1919, were 7/10 and 149 respectively and the increase in the silver values of our liquid gold assets, such as agency balances, arising from these differences in exchange, as I have already stated, has been credited to working account which in previous years has been debited with our exchange losses arising from the shrinkage in the silver values of these Assets.

BUSINESS INCREASED

"Our business generally shows a satisfactory increase but in comparing the working accounts for 1920 and 1919 you must bear in mind that a considerable portion of the increased figures now under review is accounted for by the very large fall in exchange.

"Competition in our marine business remains keen. Rates in many directions are cut very fine and the additional revenue from war risk premiums, which for a period compensated to some extent for exiguous marine premiums, is now almost negligible. Furthermore the extraneous risks, such as pilferage and theft, which marine underwriters are now called upon to accept result in claims which are out of proportion to the extra rates charged for these risks.

"The fire department is passing through an equally trying period. The shrinkage in values and universal trade depression have caused an increase in moral hazard with which it is very difficult to cope. No premium will cover an additional risk of such a nature and we must look forward to an anxious time until business generally is in a healthier condition. Signs of improvement however are not lacking and we can regard the future with confidence.

APPROVE YANGTSZE MERGER

"You have already been advised by circular letter dated May 4, of the proposal made by the Yangtsze Insurance Association, Ltd. to acquire the Far Eastern Insurance Co., Ltd. by offering the shareholders in the company shares of the association together with a cash payment in exchange for their shares in the company. Your directors cordially approve of the scheme of amalgamation and consider that the offer made by the Yangtsze Insurance Association, Ltd. is thoroughly equitable. We therefore have no hesitation in strongly recommending your acceptance of the offer.

"At the annual general meeting of the Yangtsze Insurance Association, Ltd., to be held on May 19 the shareholders of the Association will be asked to pass a resolution authorising the issue of sufficient new shares for the purpose of acquiring the shares of the Far Eastern Insurance Co., Ltd. If this resolution is passed the Yangtsze Insurance Association, Ltd. will then submit an offer, in the terms mentioned in the circular letter of May 4, to the individual shareholders of the company.

"If the proposed scheme is adopted the Far Eastern Company will remain a separate entity with its own board of directors and its separate agency representations. The association will become the principal shareholder of the company, the former shareholders of which, having exchanged their shares for shares of the "Yangtsze," will indirectly retain their interest in the Far Eastern's business and at the same time participate in the fortunes of the "Yangtsze."

RESOLUTIONS

The first resolution: that the report of the directors and statement of accounts for the twelve months ending December 31, 1920, as presented, be accepted and passed. This resolution was seconded by Mr. H. E. Arnhold, and carried.

Second resolution: Proposed by chairman, seconded by Mr. L. E. Arnhold, that a dividend at the rate of six percent, being one Tael and twenty cents per share, on the paid up capital of the company, be declared payable on and after May 11, 1921, at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation or the Russo-Asiatic Bank, Shanghai to shareholders on record on May 3, 1921.

Third resolution: Proposed by Mr. R. S. F. McBain, seconded by Mr. Wang Che-feng, that Messrs. Edward I. Ezra, H. E. Arnhold, E. T. Byrne, T. Harold Dollar, V. Meyer, Count L. Jezierski and H. M. Tibbey be re-elected directors to serve until the next ordinary general meeting of shareholders.

Fourth resolution: Proposed by Mr. L. Midwood, seconded by Mr. Wang Che-feng, that Messrs. G. H. and N. Thomson be re-elected auditors to serve until the next ordinary general meeting of shareholders and that their remuneration be Tls. 300 per annum.

CHINA MERCHANTS LAUNCH NEW SHIP FROM OLD DOCK

Shanghai Dock And Engineering Company Build Sister To Kiang-An

The China Merchants new Yangtsze steamer, the Kiang-shun, built by the Shanghai Dock and Engineering Company, was successfully launched from the Pootung yards yesterday in the presence of representatives of the owners and builders and a large gathering of their friends.

As the new vessel moved down the ways she was christened by Mme. Fu, daughter-in-law of Mr. Fu Siao-en, director of the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company. Following the launch Mr. John Prentice proposed success to the ship and her owners and Mr. Fu Siao-en responded. Mr. Prentice then presented Mme. Fu with a gold bag and bouquet of flowers as a souvenir of the occasion.

Among those present at the launching were Mr. Fu Siao-en; Captain Mackinnon and Mr. Gavin Wallace, superintendents for the owners; Mr. John Prentice, chairman, and Mr. W. S. Burns, manager, of the Dock Company; Mr. H. L. Fletcher, Lloyd's surveyor; Miss Ada Law, Mr. T. H. Harris, Mr. C. E. Sparke, Mrs. D. E. M. Drummond, Captain P. H. Rolfe, Mr. C. D. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Bailley, Dr. Tong, Mr. Dalby, Mr. F. H. Gearey, Mrs. A. Sinclair, Mr. J. Ross and Mrs. T. W. Stedman.

SISTER TO KIANG-AN

The Kiang-Shun has been designed as a passenger and cargo steamer for service on the Yangtsze and is a sister ship to the Kiang-An, built by the Dock Company a few months ago for the same owners. She is fitted with special ports and cargo facilities for the rapid loading and discharging of cargo and her passenger accommodation is large and luxuriously finished. She measures 340 feet long by 48 feet moulded breadth and 24 feet 9 inches moulded depth to upper deck and carries 2,150 tons deadweight cargo on a light draft of 12 feet 6 inches.

The Chinese saloons and passenger accommodation are placed on the upper deck and large first class saloons and state rooms for 28 first class and 40 second class passengers forward, and 34 second class and 164 third class aft. The petty officers and crew are comfortably placed in the forecastle and the compradore staff and other supernumeries are placed amidships.

On the deck above the upper deck is placed the first class European accommodation, consisting of a large and luxuriously appointed saloon forward and state rooms for 16 passengers; the officers and engineers are comfortably placed amidship and the after end of the deck is occupied by a large saloon and state rooms for 56 second class passengers.

The deck above the European accommodation is arranged for navigating purposes with large wheel house and spacious rooms for the captain and pilots.

HAS 3,200 HORSEPOWER

The propelling machinery of about 3,200 indicated horsepower built in the Dock Company's workshops consists of two independent sets of triple expansion surface condensing engines, each fitted with the usual pumps and direct acting steam and oil reversing gear, while steam is generated in two large cylindrical multitubular boilers of 16 feet 3 inches diameter fitted with Howdens forced draft and designed for a working pressure of 180 lbs. per square inch and an auxiliary boiler of the same working pressure for general service. The main boilers are the largest so far made in China.

The auxiliary machinery includes independent centrifugal circulating pumps, Weir's feed and general service pumps and feed heater, Weir's ballast pumps, sanitary pumps, two large steam-driven dynamos for lighting and fans, steam steering gear, steam windlass, steam capstan aft and other fittings as usual in a steamer of this class.

The construction of the vessel has been superintended by Captain Mackinnon and Mr. Gavin Wallace, the owners' superintendents.

After the launch the Kiang-Shun was towed to the Dock Company's International Dock sheerlegs to have her boilers and engines placed on board and will return in a few days to the Pootung Works for completion.

Obituary

EDGAR POWELL HOGAN

Edgar Powell Hogan, the first son of Ralph Montague Hogan and his wife Mary Powell Hogan was born at Gray Summit, Missouri, U.S.A., October 6, 1915, and died at Kaifeng, Honan, China May 6, 1921, age five years and seven months. In spite of his sturdy physique and excellent general health, he mysteriously contracted meningitis, and the little life slipped away before even the doctors could realise the danger. No child in the little foreign community in Kaifeng would be more seriously missed than Edgar.

Burial was in Bubbling Well Cemetery, Shanghai on Tuesday afternoon, May 10, 3:30 p.m., Rev. G. A. Fitch officiating.

MR. H. R. FERNANDES

The funeral for the late Mr. H. R. Fernandes, who died last Sunday, took place yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The service began at the Nanzing Road Church where the Rev. Father Beaumert performed the first part of the usual religious rites. The coffin was then taken from the church by the pall-bearers, four fellow-sergeants and corporals of the Portuguese Co. S.V.C. and placed in a hearse, draped with the Municipal flag. At 5 o'clock, headed by two mounted Indian lancers and preceded by the firing squad of volunteers, the procession started on its way to the Pahsienjao Cemetery. Following the hearse came the chief mourners, and Captain Diniz with his whole company of volunteers. At the corner of Thibet and Nanking Roads they were joined by Col. Marr-Johnson, and Captain Beytagh, together with the staff sergeant-majors, the municipal band and a contingent from the other S.V.C. companies.

After the Rev. Beaumert had recited the last prayer, the Portuguese Consul General, Mr. Casanova, who had accompanied the mourners from the Church, stepped to the graveside and touchingly eulogised the deceased after which taps were sounded and three volleys given by the firing squad stationed outside the cemetery.

Among the numerous floral tributes sent, were the following: Russo-Asiatic Bank staff, Russo Asiatic Bank Book Office, Shanghai Waterworks Co., Bertha Collaco, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Maher, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Freitas, Mr. and Mrs. C. Marques, E. M. Carion and Emily S. Carion, Mrs. Schultz and family, Ma Kuin Fu, Zung King Yang, Maio Chang Nien, Ying Kien Tsung, J. The following resolutions were offered and passed:

1.—That the report and accounts for the year 1920 be adopted, proposed by Mr. Crawford, seconded by Mr. Gordon.

2.—That a dividend of 10 percent of the issued capital be declared, proposed by Mr. Gordon, seconded by Mr. Crawford.

3.—That Mr. C. H. Ryde be re-elected as a director, proposed by Mr. Percy T. Hillman, seconded by Mr. Woo Bai-tsung.

4.—That the appointment of Mr. R. J. Bowerman as a director be confirmed, proposed by Mr. Crawford, seconded by Mr. Gordon.

5.—That Messrs. Lowe Bingham and Matthews be elected as auditors for the ensuing year, proposed by Mr. Hillman, seconded by Mr. Isaac Mason.

The chairman, in his speech said:

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

"The report and accounts having been in your hands for some time I will, with your permission, take them as read. You will notice that a further twenty shares have been issued, although in my speech last year I said that the directors did not intend to issue any more shares except under special circumstances; these shares were applied for by a member of the staff, and your directors think it is a wise policy to encourage members of the staff by giving them an interest and share in the business.

"Sundry creditors are Tls. 3,410.70 less than last year. Bills payable amount to Tls. 9,769.47 representing goods in transit. Stock reserve has been utilised to the extent of Tls. 9,107.86 to write down some of our stock which cost us very high prices.

"You will notice that we now own Lot 104B British Concession Hankow and I am sure you will agree with me that being our own landlords will be of the greatest advantage to us in the future.

"Stocks in hand and in transit are higher than last year and sundry debtors considerably less. Cash in hand is Tls. 1,323.31 more than last year and it has not been necessary to touch our fixed deposit at the bank.

"Mr. J. D. Gordon is shortly leaving on a well-earned holiday and I am sure you will all join with me in wishing him a very pleasant time and trust he will soon be completely restored to the best of health.

"Our thanks are due to the staff for the manner in which they have worked during the year and you will be pleased to hear that they have not been forgotten by the directors.

"Mr. Bowerman has been elected a Director of the Company and his election requires confirmation at this meeting.

The Problem Of The Russian Peasant

Editor's Note: Mr. A. E. Hodoroff, writer of the following article, recently arrived in Shanghai to open a news service for the Dalta and Rosta agencies which represent the Moscow and Chita governments. Before departing for Hongkong, whither he has gone on a similar mission, he was asked by THE CHINA PRESS to write a series of articles dealing with the problem of the Russian peasant under the Soviet regime, with the problem of the so-called industrial classes in the cities and with the much muddled question of family life. Mr. Hodoroff formerly was editor of a leading financial periodical in Russia and has been a student of financial, industrial and agricultural conditions in that country all his working life. His first article follows:

BY A. E. HODOROFF

IN compliance with your request, I shall try to give you some idea of the life of the people in Soviet Russia.

The first and most important question is that of the Russian peasant, and one must never forget that the peasants form the largest portion of the total population of Russia. The question is not only important with regard to food and other vital supplies; but it is also an important factor in many questions of state, as, for instance, the question of the army.

The Moscow government has to rely upon the peasants for its recruits. During the revolution what happened? Did they support the Moscow government? Indeed they did. And what were their reasons for this support? It was very simple. The Moscow government was the only government which was really sincere in its desire to protect their welfare. And it evidenced its sincerity by its action in returning to the peasants the lands which really belonged to them.

These lands were taken away from time to time by the Tsars, and given as rewards to the Court people who were in the good graces of the rulers at the time. The tsarinas were fond of rewarding favorites in this way, especially Catherine the Great. Now, with the lands which were their birthright, the peasants were also turned over to the landlords, and it is a perfectly well known historical fact, that they were enslaved upon their own lands in connection with the gift of these lands to the ruler's favorites.

Only in 1861 were the chains of slavery broken, and the slaves freed. But they did not get their lands back. They were given small pieces of land, and the crops were absolutely inadequate for their immediate needs of food; there was no room to raise an extra bit for barter, and to meet the normal family living expenses. The ground also had to suffer, for it was impossible to waste time and space in improving it. There was also a tax imposed, an obligatory tax, that was very high for this land, together with all sorts of other taxes which made life very difficult.

So the result was, that economically the peasants continued to drag along, living like the slaves they had been. And this life could not be bettered while they were forced to rent their lands, and to stagger under the heavy taxes. All this made the agricultural problem (which is one and the same as the peasant problem) the most difficult and at the same time, the most important, problem of Russian life. The success or failure of the Russian revolution depended to a large extent upon this problem and its proper solution, and the only straight and proper solution seemed to be to return the land to the peasants from whom it had been taken, and to return it without delay or conditions.

This problem became an acute one during the war, and naturally during the revolution when about fifteen millions of the people were in the army, the big majority of these being peasants. The Moscow government did not hesitate for a moment to take over the land and to return it to the peasants to whom it rightfully belonged. Neither the provisional government nor Kerensky's government dared to undertake this reform, and this very fact secured to the Communists the support of the peasants in the October revolution, and in the following months, when they were met with sabotage in every part and corner of Russia.

What ought to be the principle on which the peasants should dispose of their land? The Moscow government has decided to preserve private ownership of land. Nobody who knows the Russian peasant could be convinced that these peasants, who have given their support and assistance to the government are Communists. They are not. They are well known as hard workers in their own pieces of land, and are peaceful and industrious. The government is endeavoring to encourage the peasants to follow certain Communistic systems of improving the land and with this purpose in view has organised many farms of its own to work on, which are running along with the combined efforts of a commune. They are for the sole purpose of teaching the peasants that this very principle—that of co-operation—increases the productivity of their lands.

The government has had many difficulties to overcome with which the country was faced during and after the participation of Russia in the war. The blockade and the war of twelve fronts forced the Moscow government to take any means of saving the country, i.e. not allowing the counter-revolutionists to regain ground in Russia, and the White generals with their fellow-landlords to come into power again. This was and is the task that confronts New Russia, and one should not be surprised at a Government taking all the steps necessary for its success. Among these measures was the requisitioning of grain from the peasants in the case of refusal to contribute voluntarily. In other words, the government proclaimed a monopoly on grain. And, as is usual under the circumstances, the peasants were not pleased. The opponents of the government saw their advantage and used this to stir up the peasants against the Moscow government.

Then came the well known story of Yudenich, Kolchak, Wrangel, and others. This old crowd started right away retaking the land from the peasants and giving it back to the landlords. The experiment was a good lesson, albeit a very bitter one, for the peasants. They then joined en masse the Soviet army and carried out the campaigns against the White Guard, as we in Russia call them, successfully. The present state of affairs is that with the end of the civil struggle, and the liquidation of the fronts the requisitioning of grain has disappeared entirely. The peasants are now paying only a certain percentage of their harvests as a tax to the government and they can freely dispose of the rest of their crops however they like. This will encourage them to produce as they can, and to use every available bit of land. The slogan of the Spring campaign in Russia is: "Cultivate all the plowable area of Russia."

With the reopening of trade relations with Great Britain, Germany and other countries the Moscow government will be in a position to offer to the peasant farmers all sorts of farming machinery, and manufactured goods, which will tend to lead to a general improvement in conditions. The relations between the peasants and the government are of a very amicable nature and will become more close and more friendly as time goes on. All non-prejudiced people, Russian or foreign, who study the question, will see that peace and friendliness must come out of the government's constant attempts to improve conditions, and to educate and organise the peasant population, and to electrify into agricultural progress every corner of Russia.

In my next article to you, I shall take up the question of family life in Russia.

SOME ONE GETS NOTHING

Sir Marley Samson, a countryman of Lloyd George, and one of Wales' most popular advocates, who defended Archdeacon Wakefield in the recent famous trial, tells a good story.

It concerns an Irishman who went to a lawyer with a case.

The latter naturally asked for a retainer, but the Irishman pleaded poverty, and finally the lawyer said he would take the case on a contingent fee.

It was settled, but the contingent fee part of the agreement bothered the client. He confided his ignorance to his friend Paddy, and asked for an explanation.

"An' it is the meanin' of a contingent fee yer after knowing? Sure, I'll tell ye:

"A contingent fee means that if ye lose the case the lawyer gets nothing. If ye win you git nothin'."

SOME OLD SUPERSTITIONS
The Giving of Knives

The popular superstition that it "breaks friendship" to give or accept a knife without something of value—preferably money—passing in return, is a survival from the primitive man.

The savage, having progressed from a club to a knife or spear as a weapon, soon learned the danger of relinquishing it merely for friendship's sake. His friend, having disarmed him, was apt to be his friend no longer.

So, for giving up his knife even to his friend, he demanded a recompense. And he saw that when a friend presented him with a weapon, that friend presently came to regard him—because of regret for the act, or because of envy at the added superiority the gift bestowed—with suspicion, growing into enmity.

Whereas, if he gave a consideration for the knife, it was a matter of fair trade, and friendship was likely to endure.

All this became so deeply ingrained in the mind of the primitive man, that the idea survives today as a popular superstition.

Popular superstitions belong to folk lore, and, where they have not a religious derivation, are mostly survivals from ancient civilisations, or are inherited from our savage ancestors.

THROWING THE SLIPPER

Bridegroom has nothing to do with groom. It is from the old English word guma, a man. Hence brydguma, the bride's man. The custom of throwing the slipper after the carriage of the newly-wed originated in the East. A father angry with his son would remove his shoe and strike him with it, or throw it at him. In the Roman days the removal of a shoe from a foot was the legal form of renunciation. At the weddings of the rich in ancient Egypt collections of shoes were made and showered upon the happy couple in the same spirit in which we throw the slipper today.

You mean it merely drops a beat or so,

But, my dear fellow, surely you must know
That's good old rag-time! Oh, I don't mind that!

THE HALL & HAYES REPORTS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—In view of the articles appearing in several of the English dailies regarding the Famine Relief work in Shensi, it is only right that the following statement should be published. It was written by Rev. F. N. Russell of the British Baptist Missionary Society engaged in Y.M.C.A. work in Sianfu and at present treasurer of the Shensi International Famine Relief Committee. The articles were written by Mr. J. W. Hall of the China-American News agency who accompanied Rev. John Hayes, a special representative sent by the United International Famine Relief Committee to Shensi and Kansu, Mr. Russell writes as follows: . .

The reports amount to this: that if Mr. Hall's words are true then the whole business of famine work in Shensi is one huge scandal, bringing nothing but discredit upon Chinese and foreign workers alike. It involves the entire missionary body in Shensi with two individual exceptions. Therefore, in weighing up on the one hand the reports of two men who were absolutely new to the province, and whose stay in the province from the time they entered it until the time they left it, did not exceed twenty days; together with the reports of two missionaries living in the extreme south of the province, where conditions are admittedly more favorable, as against the reports of thirty of forty foreign missionaries of various nationalities, representing five different missionary bodies—men for the most part of long-standing experience in Shensi, and therefore not easily gulled or likely to be unduly influenced by officials; men who have been devoting practically the whole of their time for the last six months to the task of relieving famine distress.

Does anyone really suppose that busy men are going to add considerably to their duties by taking on famine relief work if there is no real cause behind it all? With the exception of those who are tied down by secretarial duties the rest of the above mentioned people are out on the road all the time personally supervising the work of famine relief, and suffering all kinds of hardships quite cheerfully if only they can be of service. Some people might ascribe unworthy motives and say that we are all in this thing for what we can get out of it by way of kudos, but anyone who has had anything to do with famine relief work in Shensi will tell you that nothing but opprobrium is heaped upon one by officials and victims alike: the former because they can make nothing out of it and the latter because there isn't enough relief to go all found.

Hall says that the province seems to be suffering more from a sort of infectious famine scare than from actual famine. Quite a pretty journalistic touch, but not true. The inference is that as soon as the various relief organisations were formed and we heard that Chihli and other provinces were being helped, Shensi, not to be behindhand, started sending out panicky appeals. As a matter of fact, however, Watson, myself and others began appealing for help away back last June as soon as we saw that the crops had failed and I was instructed by our mission to cable to London for help. This was long before any International Committee were formed either in Peking or Shanghai, if I remember rightly. We began distributing relief in our own Church area with mission funds in August. At that time the mission finances were in a very precarious state owing to the adverse rate of exchange, and we had been instructed from London to cut down our expenses ruthlessly; in the face of this it is scarcely likely that we as a body should have cabled home for funds unless there had been acute distress.

I myself travelled over practically the whole district north of the Wei river last summer and testify to the total failure of both Spring and Summer crops. Even the weeds would not grow, to say nothing of grain and cotton. Hundreds of families left the district and scores of victims died on the way from exhaustion and heat. The temperature was about 118 in the shade for a fortnight, and animals died wholesale.

On top of this comes the damaging newspaper article to the effect that the whole thing is a scandal. Were his observations based upon personal investigation of the actual conditions, one would be prepared to stand or fall by them, although one would have to make certain allowance for the journalistic touch even then, as it might err on the other side and then people would blame us for not making enough of it! But the simple fact is that neither Hall nor Hayes did any actual work of investigation; hence their reports have no intrinsic value, being based upon hearsay, and that of officials. The party entered Shensi by Tungkwan and passed through Hwayin and Hwahsien and the Southern half of We nan and Lintung. The only piece of investigation carried out between Tungkwan and Sian was a dash up over the hill at Lintung and a passing glance into one or two cave dwellings, the whole thing not taking up more than an hour of their time.

The road from Tungkwan to Sian passes through one of the richest and most fertile wheat-producing districts in China, though even here the crop was a partial failure. The road in question is the ancient highway to Turkestan; consequently all the traffic of northwest China converges upon it and gives the impression of wealth and abundance, quite deceiving the stranger as to the actual conditions prevailing within a few miles of the road.

Arrived at Sian the party was royally entertained by the Tuchun and Civil Governor, who vied with each other in providing amusement and pleasure for the foreign strangers. Feasts were the order of the day, and no time could be spared for a visit to any of the six soup kitchens in daily operation within the city, much less to the country districts in the immediate vicinity, where girls and women were being sold, as both Mr. Anderson and Father Ormazabal can testify. What time could be spared from the feasting, Hall employed in typing his sensational hearsay reports to the Press. Hayes was faced with an almost supernuman task in getting the organisation of the Central Committee licked into shape. He did the job manfully and certainly put in some very effective work; in fact, it is not too much to say that the smooth working of the whole machinery ever since is entirely due to Hayes' good efforts. But the vital fact remains that neither Hayes nor Hall did any real investigation, and therefore are not in a position to report on famine conditions in Shensi.

Hayes and I went over to San Yuan and stayed just one day, which again was too fully occupied with Committee meetings and the inevitable feast to permit of any opportunity for personal investigation.

What happened after Hall and Hayes left for Kansu I am not in a position to say—I can only surmise. They reached the Kansu border in five days, thus saving a day, as the journey usually takes six days. Hence they could not possibly have carried out any investigation there either. They could only observe conditions prevailing along the main road which as I have said, are deceptive. One wonders what their motive was in coming to Shensi at all if not to look into the actual conditions, and that was the one thing they did not do.

We maintain that at least twenty-nine hsien are in acute stage of famine, and we hope that the Peking Committee will reappoint someone to investigate the conditions; this much is due to us in all justice after all that has been written and said on the subject. We in turn will do all we can to facilitate any steps that your Committee feel inclined to take towards ascertaining the true facts of the case. The only things we fear are misstatements.

The following statement should be added to the above that the Shensi Committee appointed a commission consisting of Bishop Massi, Father Ormabal, Rev. James Watson, Rev. S. Russell and Mr. Kaolungshan to come to Peking to justify their position but that the United International Committee of Peking decided that there was clearly famine in Shensi fully justifying the use of the Shensi portion—approximately seven percent of his entire funds—and the visit was not necessary.

DWIGHT W. EDWARDS,
Hon. Sec. United International Famine Relief Committee.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper (Registered Trade Mark)

is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Mr. B. Baer On Love

Bates professor says that love at first sight is the reason why opticians do so much business.

This may be true about Bates professors. Bates College is up in Maine. The first State to pass prohibition and the last to realise it. Fortunately, love at first look still blooms in the rest of the U. S. Spring is almost here with its new hopes and fears. It's the time of the calendar when Hon and Dearie decide to lay plans for future alimony proceedings.

The divorce news lately has been very discouraging to everybody but lawyers. One of our wealthiest Bluebeards has been plastered by the courts because he bought his wedding rings at a wholesale jewelry house. Another New York millionaire thinks that Tuesdays and Thursdays are visiting days in the Court of Domestic Relations. He fired four English valets because they put the wrong kind of subpoenas on him.

The average marriage in the 400 lasts just about long enough for the happy couple to hock the presents. Guests at a wedding dinner are invited to stay over for the divorce.

The society couple who decide to marry have just about reached their last agreement.

There should be game laws limiting millionaires to a bag of sixteen wives during the alimony season. The luxurious folks establish a bad example for the rest of us who still think that a marriage certificate shouldn't be given away with every package of cigarettes.

Remember the old-fashioned wedding photographs? John is sitting down on a velvet covered beer keg, while Minnie stands blushingly at his side with a bouquet of celluloid nasturtiums in her oversize gloves. The old man would take two untoned prints and tell the photographer the others were no good. Then he'd tone the two prints himself. Thus saving the price of a dozen.

But that sweet sentiment is all out now. No more wedding pictures. If a New Yorker ordered a dozen pictures of himself and his wife, there would be a different girl on each photograph.

How To Drive A Screw Into A Stone Wall

Housekeepers who live in houses with concrete, brick or stone walls usually find it very difficult to hang pictures or brackets in their rooms even when they have succeeded in drilling or chiseling a hole in the concrete or brick, writes E. J. Holmes in the Popular Science Monthly. Neither nails nor screws will hold in these holes, which necessarily must be made quite large.

Electricians who are called upon to attach electric-light fixtures to such walls usually drill holes, fill them with lead and fasten the screws in the lead. Sometimes they use what is called expansion sleeves, which are so designed that the screw, as it is screwed into the sleeve, causes the part of the sleeve furthest away from the surface to expand, thus taking firm hold of the surrounding concrete or brick.

All housekeepers who are not expert electrical workers should try steel wool, such as is used for scouring metal surfaces. This furnishes an excellent substitute for lead filling or expansion sleeves. The hole should be drilled to the depth of at least 1 inch and wide enough to hold a sufficiently large screw. Then place a wad of steel wool in the hole and drive your screw through the wool into the hole. You will find it impossible to pull a screw fastened in this manner out of the hole with your hands.

Freak Inventions Patented In England

Among the oddities recently patented in England are what is called a "safety ship," which is a great hull mounted on three floats and entirely above the water; and a tin cape hinging at the neck, to be worn by a man having his hair trimmed. The cape has a gutter around its wide or lower edge, with a spout to pour the clippings of hair into a basket.

Another is a boot with a sole so thick that it can contain a chamber into which hot water is poured, to keep warm the feet of the wearer.

Then there is a double bowled pipe, with a small pipe connecting the two bowls. Both bowls are to be filled with tobacco, a stem with an air-tight cap is put over one bowl and the other is lighted. When this is smoked out it is refilled and the stem and cap are changed to it, the bowls being smoked alternately and the smoke always passes through an unburnt charge of tobacco before being drawn into the mouth.

But the oddest of all is an apparatus for determining the sex of any living thing. Of this the inventor writes: "The appliance is operated by magnetism derived from the contact between the user of the instrument and the human being, animal, or egg. The device is operated by holding the handle as lightly as possible, so that the wire around the handle touches the hand. The instrument is then held over the subject to be tested."

The handle is of cork, wound with copper wire, from which hangs by a silk thread a pendulum consisting of a casing containing steel wires passing through a cork plate and surrounding a central needle which penetrates a cork stopper at the lower end. When held over a male o fany sort, whether this be an adult or an embryo, the pendulum swings to and fro; when it is held over a female the pendulum gyrates in circles.
